CRIME PROBERS TOLD . . .

'Help Families Of Delinquents'

Omaha (AP) — The way to help juvenile delinquents is to help their families, the director of Douglas County Youth Center said Thursday.

When youths who have been institutionalized are returned to their homes, "we find that nothing has changed in the home situation and the youngster returns to delinquency," Peter V. Knolla, the center director, said.

Knolla's view was contained in a statement prepared for the House Select Committee on Crime, now holding a hearing in Omaha.

Other Problems

Delinquents, Knolla said, often turn out to be the young people who have to cope with divorce, alcoholism and other major home problems in addition to the normal hurdles of adolescence.

He said youths' problems are often "explosive" and require immediate attention, yet "mental health clinics and social agencies have long waiting lists."

He said one of the first symptoms of delinquency is truancy from school, although most delinquent children have intellectual capacity.

Raps Experts

Earlier in the hearing, Mayor Eugene Leahy said experts who say publicly that there is nothing medically wrong with marijuana are "the people we ought to shut up, because who are the kids going to believe, their parents or the experts?"

"We are too permissive as parents, and I think it's time for us to bring back a sense of discipline," said Leahy.

An opposite view was taken later in the hearing, when Dennis Jackson, a counselor with "Operation Bridge," said: "One of the things we've tended to do with young people is blame their parents."

He said anyone over 13 years old can make his own decisions and responsibility for any wrong doing should be placed "squarely on the shoulders" of the young offender.

Jackson said he has found that youngsters get into trouble "through their own involvement, their own decision making."

Mayor Leahy suggested high school classes describing drug abuse and its effects and said young people should be exposed to panels of inmates from the Nebraska penal complex.

Omaha's three television stations, Leahy said, should make a film on drug dangers and show the film simultaneously during prime time so that young people couldn't watch anything else.

Teenagers and parents should watch the film together, the mayor said, and then "Sit down and talk eyeball to eyeball about the realities of life."

In a written statement to the committee, Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., said crime presents "the greatest current domestic threat to our nation's internal security."

Legislation Urged

He urged the committee to lead Congress in passing crime legislation wanted by the White House.

In a similar statement, Rep. Glenn Cunningham, R-Neb., said organized crime has penetrated big cities, suburbs and small towns. He said it feeds on "its virtual monopoly on illegal gambling, the numbers racket and narcotics."

He also criticized persons who sell pornography: "We must remember it is our children these people are after."

Committee hearings continue in Omaha through Friday. The group will hold sessions in Lincoln Saturday.

HAYNSWORTH OK'D, 10-7

TWO HURLED TO PAVEMENT IN CAR-CYCLE CRASH

Two motorcycle riders are shown immediately after they were hurled to the pavement in collision with another vehicle at 13th and M Thursday afternoon. The two, who suffered only minor injuries, were identified by police as Dale and Kristine Moseman, both 20, of 229 No. 11th. John T. Tavlin, 19, of 1340 Crestdale, the driver of the car which collided with the motorcycle, is shown in the background leaving his auto. The car was southbonud on 13th and the cycle eastbound on M at the time of the mishap. The man in the right foreground is an unidentified bystander. (Star Photo by Willis Van Sickle)

Uncertainty Deepening

. . . On Floor Action

Washington (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee approved the Supreme Court nomination of Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. Thursday but other developments deepened the uncertainty about Senate floor action on the appointment.

The committee action came in the morning on a 10-6 vote with Republican Charles McC. Mathias of Maryland abstaining.

Some hours later Mathias in a letter to the committee chairman asked that he be recorded in opposition to the nomination, making the final count 10 to 7 and moving Mathias from the ranks of the undecided.

Meanwhile, the American Bar Association Committee on the Federal Judiciary disclosed it will meet in a few days to review its position on the Haynsworth nomination.

There was no indication whether this means that the committee is seriously considering withdrawal of its warm endorsement of Haynsworth before the Judiciary Committee Sept. 18. But it obviously opened that possibility

Close Vote Seen

In another development, Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., a leading backer of Haynsworth acknowledged the possibility the judge may withdraw his name. And he conceded that the outlook on the Senate vote has changed so much that confirmation might hinge on only a vote or two.

Through his office, Haynesworth said again he does not plan to withdraw.

The White House reported President Nixon pleased with the Judiciary Committee action.

Before the committee took its vote on the nomination, it rejected, 14 to 3, a motion by Mathias to postpone action again.

The committee postponed its vote twice before, last week and again Wednesday after Sen. Robert P. Griffin, the Republican whip from Michigan, publicly joined the opposition to Haynsworth.

Judiciary Committee Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said it would be at least a week before minority and majority reports could be prepared, a formality necessary before floor debate can start.

Sen. Birch Bayh. D-Ind., Judiciary Committee member who has been leading the opposition to Haynsworth, said it may be two weeks before debate begins.

Despite the solid vote to report the nomination of Haynsworth, a judge on the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the past 12 years, prospects for confirmation remained highly uncertain with each side claiming the majority required to confirm or reject the nominee.

Bayh, in a news conference outside the committee room, several times referred to "half the Senate" being against the nomination.

In another development, Hollings challenged Bayh to a television debate over the nomination.

Voting in committee for Haynsworth were Sens. Eastland, Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., Marlow W. Cook, R-Ky., John L. McClellan, D-Ark., Sam J. Ervin Jr. D-N.C., Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., Hiram L. Fong, R-Hawaii, Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., and Hugh Scott, R-Pa.

Voting against Haynsworth were Sens. bayh, Griffin, Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., and Quentin N. Burdick, D-N.D.

Wallace Supporter Praises Nixon

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The leader of Nebraska's American Party Thursday praised President Nixon's Supreme Court appointments and his administration's policy on school desegregation and law-and-order.

"I've not given up on him yet," Dr. Gerald Byrd of Omaha noted.

"I think he's trying, and I'm sure Governor Wallace would have had just as much trouble getting things done."

The American Party, still officially recognized as a third political party in Nebraska, supported George Wallace for the presidency in 1968.

Try Again

Byrd said the party will remain intact until 1972 and is prepared to support Wallace once again if he makes another presidential bid three years hence. Otherwise, Byrd said, the party will probably disband at that time.

The party does not plan to offer any candidates to Nebraska voters in the 1970 elections, Byrd said, "although our members certainly have the same opportunity to run as other people."

Byrd expressed pleasure in the sharp increase in American Party registrants since the 1968 general election.

Up 400

Whereas the party had 1,094 members on election day, it now has 1,497 registrants, according to the latest figures from the secretary of state. Most members, 839, are in Douglas County.

The party plans to hold a state convention in 1970 to elect officers and adopt a platform. Byrd said he will be a candidate for re-election as chairman.

Nixon, he said, is "getting some things done."

His conservative approach to Supreme Court nominations is "a good thing," Byrd said.

'Done Well'

"And his attorney general has done well."

The administration's extension of time for school desegregation is "good," he said.

"We should let the people that are having problems proceed at their own pace. People will not be forced to do otherwise.

'A Little Longer'

"It's good to let them work things out for a little longer."

Both the President and Attorney General John Mitchell are "working well on law and order," Byrd said.

As for Vietnam, Byrd said he believes Nixon is "somewhat up against events . . . although I certainly think we should insist on firm negotiations instead of meekly going home."

Carpenter To Challenge Tiemann Order

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

State Sen. Terry Carpenter proposed Thursday that the Legislature seek a court order restraining Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann from "violating" the personal services restrictions in the 1969-71 appropriation bills.

The Scottsbluff lawmaker said the legislative-imposed five per cent limitation on annual salary increases "is the law until the Supreme Court decrees otherwise."

"It's the governor's duty to administer the laws," he said, "and not to violate or ignore the ones he doesn't like."

'Unconstitutional'

Tiemann has directed the Department of Administrative Services to disregard the restrictions as unconstitutional and permit state agencies to deviate from the governor's own five per cent "guideline" on salaries when there is "adequate justification."

The restrictions, the governor contends, violate constitutional provisions for biennial appropriations and upset the system of checks and balances between the executive and legislative branches.

Regarding Tiemann's latest move, Carpenter said the Legislative Council's executive board should direct the attorney general to secure a "restraining order against the governor until the Supreme Court decides whether the salary restrictions are constitutional or not."

In the final day of the 80th session, the Unicameral directed Attorney General Clarence Meyer to immediately initiate litigation seeking precise answers from the Supreme Court to all questions relating to the governor's power of budget-making and the Legislature's power of appropriation.

Forcing Determination

The Tiemann administration indicated the governor's directive regarding salaries was a step toward forcing a court determination.

"In my opinion," Carpenter said, "the governor should be restrained from violating the law until the Supreme Court is able to decide the issues."

"Whether the law is right or wrong, it's the governor's duty to administer it as written until he can obtain a court decision to the contrary," the senator said.

He said the governor "should be the last person to violate a state law, or tell another person to do the same."

Sinking Freighter Abandoned Near Greenland Coast

Frederikshaab, Greenland (UPI) — The sinking 2,676-ton Danish freighter Frida Dan was abandoned Thursday about 15 miles off this west Greenland port, the coast radio reported.

The Frida Dan struck an iceberg in dense fog early Thursday while en route from Greenland to Denmark.

Capt. Aaborg Nielsen reported earlier that she was listing but said he hoped to make it to port under his own power. But about 15 miles offshore the ship developed engine trouble.

The 30 crew members and two passengers and the ship's dog were taken aboard the sand dredger Holmi whose captain said the Frida Dan's bow was submerged.

Gleason Diets, Loses 12 Inches Off Middle

Miami Beach, Fla. (AP) — Jackie Gleason melted off 61 pounds — reducting his 54-inch middle to a mere 42 — using a diet of meat, eggs, fish and "all the booze I wanted."

The beefy entertainer is down to 200 and claims, "If I lose any more the television viewers will think I'm dying."

Gleason's attack on girth began March 20 and much of the fat is gone.

Alternated Days

"It wasn't too bad," Jackie said. "I ate all meat one day, all eggs the next and all fish the next.

"The no-no's were vegetables, breads and sweets. I ate scrambled eggs, boiled eggs and omelets along with every kind of meat and fish imaginable. But that was all."

Gleason illustrated his weight loss backstage before rehearsal for his Saturday night show on CBS-TV. "Gimme those Ralph Kramden pants," he told a wardrobe man. "They'll show."

'Used To Be Tight

The outfit Gleason used last season in Honeymooner scenes as the Brooklyn bus driver measured 54 inches. "And they used to be tight," he said.

Jackie pulled on the trousers and held them out, showing enough space to stuff Mickey Rooney inside with him.

"The last time I was under 210 was in 1956," Gleason said, beaming over any mention of the famed waistline. "All that diet and I still glugged down all the martinis I desired — even ate the olives. How sweet it is."

Consumer Bill Moved

Washington (UPI) — A Senate subcommittee Thursday approved a bill to allow consumers to correct misinformation about themselves in the files of credit rating bureaus.

Vietnam Moratorium To Be Nationwide

By The Associated Press

Next Wednesday's moratorium to protest the Vietnam war is growing into a nationwide affair that will involve persons of all ages including politicians, businessmen and professional people, as well as the students who started it.

Plans for the moratorium — meaning suspension of normal activities — include rallies, speeches, marches and religious services from coast to coast, culminating in a 5 p.m. candlelight procession around the White House.

Indications are that some form of activity connected with the moratorium will take place in every state.

Sponsors plan to have 45,000 marchers in the Washington procession. They will be led by the widow of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

64 In Congress Back It

Seventeen senators and 47 congressmen have expressed support so long as the moratorium is "peaceful, lawful and nonviolent." Some plan speeches against the war in the Senate and House. Congressional staff members plan a vigil on the Capitol steps.

Plans to keep the House in session all night on Oct 14 as a symbol of protest against the war were disclosed by Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., who said enough speakers have been lined up to talk through the night.

Names of war dead will be read at hundreds of ceremonies, including one in New York's Wall Street, where financial workers are scheduled to take part along with Mayor John V. Lindsay and former deputy defense secretary Roswell Gilpatric.

Endorsed By Rabbis

The executive board of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, representing 1,100 Reform rabbis, endorsed the moratorium. Its president condemned President Nixon's recent press conference statement that he would not be affected by protests

Dozens of colleges canceled classes, or announced that absences would not be penalized. But Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke of the 19-campus California State Colleges prohibited dismissal of classes and ordered disciplinary action against any professors who disobey.

The New York City school board will let teachers and pupils have the day off, but urged those who stay in school to hold discussions about Vietnam.

Governors OK It

Three New England governors endorsed the moratorium — Democrats Kenneth Curtis of Maine and Frank Licht of Rhode Island and Republican Francis W. Sargent of Massachusetts.

In Sacramento, Calif., students planned a 24-hour vigil outside the home of Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Gov. Dewey Bartlett of Oklahoma declined to appear at college rallies, but Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., the Democratic national chairman, accepted.

National Airlines Jetliner Hijacked

Miami (AP) — A National Airlines jetliner with 70 persons aboard was hijacked to Cuba Thursday during a transcontinental flight from Los Angeles, the Federal Aviation Administration reported.

The pilot of the DC8, which was bound for Miami, reported he was over Texas when the flight was diverted to Havana.

The FAA said the plane landed at Havana Thursday evening but there was no immediate information on the hijacker or his weapon. Among the 63 passengers aboard was San Diego Padres pitching coach Roger Craig.

National Airlines said one or more baseball players also were aboard but they were not immediately identified from the passenger list.

The hijacking was the third in two days and the 46th commercial airliner forced to Cuba this year.

An Aerolineas Argentineas jet, hijacked while on a flight from Buenos Aires Wednesday with 56 passengers and a crew of 12, flew into Miami Thursday.

A Brazilian Curzeiro do Sul jetliner, also pirated Wednesday with a total of 50 persons aboard, took off from Havana for San Juan Thursday night, the FAA said.

The hijacking of the National plane came as the United Nations agreed to a full-scale debate on what it called "forcible diversion of civil aircraft in flight."

Commanders Ordered To Push Vietnamization

(C) New York Times News Service

Washington — American commanders in Vietnam, operating under "new orders" to shift the burden of fighting to the South Vietnamese, "have achieved a real momentum," Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said Thursday. (More on Page 2)

Russia Tries Capitalist Way

Moscow — By approving the results of a two-year experiment at a chemical combine 100 miles south of here, the Soviet Communist Party's central committee encouraged factory managers to dismiss surplus workers and use the money saved to pay remaining workers better. Productivity soared during the experiment, and all dismissed employes were offered other jobs, Pravda reported.

Surveillance Tightened

Athens — Following news that a former Greek cabinet minister had been rescued from his island detention and reports that two other Greek politicians had fled the country, the Athens government tightened its round-the-clock surveillance on former politicians and arrested two extreme right-wing former deputies.

Tories Favor Death Penalty

Brighton, England — In a vote that surprised their leader, Edward Heath, delegates to the Conservative Party conference here urged that capital punishment — by hanging — for murder be restored in Britain when a five-year moratorium ends next year.

Battle Deaths Low

Saigon — The U.S. Command announced that fewer Americans had died in combat last week than in any week in the last three years. (More on Page 2.)

Haynsworth Approved

Washington — President Nixon's nomination of Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. to the Supreme Court was approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee in a 10 to 7 vote. (More on Page 1.)

Part Of Tax Reform Rejected

Washington — In its first vote on the proposed tax reform bill, the Senate Finance Committee agreed to strike out a major reform that would have imposed a limited and indirect tax on some of the interest paid on state and local government bonds.

Guard Called Out In Chicago

Chicago — Officials called out the National Guard as small bands of radical youths continued demonstrations in the center of the city. Three young people were hospitalized with gunshot wounds in the aftermath of a wild night Wednesday of window breaking and fighting with the police.

Court To Rule On Integration

Washington — The Supreme Court, with unusual speed, agreed to decide whether the Nixon administration's delay of school desegregation in 33 Mississippi districts was proper. (More on Page 10)

Mexican Request Rejected

Washington — A source close to representatives of the United States and Mexico conferring on Operation Intercept said the Nixon administration has rejected a Mexican government appeal that the anti-marijuana smuggling operation be promptly terminated and would not modify the operation until Mexico cracks down on its large marijuana distributors.

Acheson Says U.S. Aid To Anti-Reds In Vietnam Began In Policy 'Muddle'

World News

Washington (AP) — Former Secretary of State Dean Acheson says U.S. aid to anti-Communist forces in Vietnam began 19 years ago under a "muddled hodgepodge" of policy and the possibility of defeat was foreseen from the very beginning.

In a new book covering his official career and four climactic years, 1949-53, as President Harry S. Truman's foreign policy chief, Acheson writes that assistance to France and its dependent Vietnamese government under Prince Bao Dai was undertaken in 1950 with reluctance because of the danger of failure.

He also records a warning from the Joint Chiefs of Staff a year later — when little progress had been made against the insurgent forces of Ho Chi Minh with their Russian and Chinese backing — "against any statement that would commit . . . United States armed forces to Indochina."

His account reflects from those days of initial intervention with economic and military aid many of the same issues, uncertainties and failures which persist in the war to this day. Acheson then favored at least the limited support which Truman extended to the French and their local regime.

In later years he was known generally as a "hawk" on Vietnam. But in 1968 he was one of those who helped persuade President Lyndon B. Johnson to end the bombing of North Vietnam and start peace negotiations. Now he is an advocate of President Nixon's policy of U.S. withdrawal.

Acheson's book, "Present at the Creation: My Years in the State Department," is being published Friday by W. W. Norton & Co. Inc., New York.

"During the spring of 1950," Acheson writes, "after some hestiation, we in the (State) Department recommended aid to France and the associated states (Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia) in combatting Ho's insurgency which was backed by the Chinese and Russians.

"The aid was to be limited to economic and military supplies, stopping short of our own military intervention. If Chinese or Soviet forces should intervene directly, the situation would be reconsidered.

"The hesitation came from the belief of some of my colleagues, that, even with our material and financial help the French-Bao Dai regime would be defeated in the field by the Soviet — and Chinese — supported Viet Minh.

"All of us recognized the high probability of this result unless France swiftly transferred authority to the associated states and organized, trained and equipped with our aid, substantial indigenous forces to take over the main burden of the fight."

The aim of Nixon's Vietnamization program is still to equip and train the now much greater anti-Communist force in South Vietnam to take over the main burden of fighting so U.S. troops can be withdrawn.

Aid OK'd In May 1950

Truman approved economic and military support for Indochina, as the area was then known, in May 1950. That was four years before the French were defeated by Ho and forced to pull out. Then the United States, trying to stave off a Communist takeover at a time of feared Red Chinese expansionism, became progressively more involved. U.S. troops were introduced into Vietnam in 1965.

But in 1950 the United States was following an essentially contradictory policy of assisting France to fight the Communist insurgency in Indochina, particularly Vietnam, and at the same time supporting the French-sponsored local regimes in their ambitions for independence.

"Both during this period and after it," Acheson says, "our conduct was criticized as being a muddled hodgepodge, directed neither toward edging the French out of an effort to re-establish their colonial role, which was beyond their power, nor helping them hard enough to accomplish it or, even better, to defeat Ho and gracefully withdraw. The description is accurate enough."

But the reason for the muddle, Acheson says, was that France as a colonial power in Indochina was still an ally in Europe and he was never able — in office or later — to figure out a better course than the one followed.

The book which Acheson has now written is a volume that the witty and sometimes sharp-tongued diplomat and policymaker once said he would never write because he could not be detached and objective about his experiences.

"That was probably the right decision," he still thinks, but he changed his mind because the experiences of more recent years "have brought the country, and particularly its young people, to a mood of depression, disillusion and withdrawal from the effort to affect the world around us."

LAIRD . . . holds news conference.

Lodge Called Home

Washington (AP) — President Nixon, embarking on a new round of Vietnam policy consultations, has asked chief peace negotiator Henry Cabot Lodge to return from Paris next week for "consultations and instructions."

Announcing this Thursday, the White House also said Nixon would meet Saturday morning with Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and other service chiefs for a first-hand report on Wheeler's recent trip to the battle zone.

On Thursday afternoon, Nixon conferred with Ellsworth Bunker, ambassador to South Vietnam who is returning to his post following home leave.

Laird Says New U.S. Orders Give Top Priority To Vietnamizing War

Washington (AP) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said Thursday the U.S. Command in Saigon has received new orders covering battlefield operations and placing highest priority on Vietnamization of the war.

Laird said policy is against public release of specific battlefield instructions but he generally described the American tactical approach now as one of "protective reaction."

The defense chief said at a news conference that the U.S. Command no longer is under presidential injunction to maintain maximum pressure on the enemy, a phrase often used by President Lyndon B. Johnson.

But Laird asserted that the Nixon administration is taking the "best approach to peace" by modernizing South Vietnamese forces to assume more of the fighting while allied negotiators seek a settlement in Paris.

The American people, he said, "should know why Vietnamization, in the absence of progress in Paris, offers the best prospect for minimizing American casualties while resolving the war as quickly as possible without abandoning our basic objectives."

Declaring "it is working," Laird claimed these developments:

—In the rice-rich Mekong Delta, the South Vietnamese have taken over half of all U.S. Navy operations in the last three months and are "doing an excellent job."

—They are also flying more bombing missions. Two South Vietnamese fighter squadrons have been converted recently from the old propeller-driven A1 aircraft to the new A37 jet attack bomber.

—Ninety-seven per cent of all Vietnamese troops including the regional and popular forces have been supplied the M16 rifle.

Toll Lowest In 3 Years

Saigon (AP) —American battlefield deaths in Vietnam last week dropped to 64, the lowest toll in nearly three years, and official sources said Thursday that if the downward trend continues President Nixon might be prompted to speed up troop withdrawals.

At the same time, it was disclosed that U.S. and South Vietnamese forces have pulled out of the once forbidding A Shau Valley, seized last spring after a controversial battle for Hamburger Hill. Lack of enemy activity was given as the reason.

U.S. officials declined to speculate on whether the deepening battle lull foreshadowed a political breakthrough toward ending the war. Some military officers pointed to the weather.

In addition to the 64 U.S. battle deaths last week, the lowest toll since the week ending Dec. 3, 1966, when 44 Americans died in action, South Vietnamese and enemy battle deaths dropped.

South Vietnamese headquarters said 209 government troop were killed in action last week, the lowest toll since the week ending May 10 when 182 South Vietnamese fighting men were killed.

Allied headquarters reported North Vietnamese and Viet Cong losses last week dropped to 1,899, the lowest number since the week ending Nov. 9, 1968, when 1,601 enemy were reported killed.

Tiemann Praises Norfolk For Financing Improvement

By CRAIG CALLAWAY
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Norfolk — Gov. Norbert Tiemann Thursday expressed thanks to Norfolk, one community which he said has taken local improvements as its own responsibility rather than going along with a trend toward grabbing for the state or federal aid dollar, and pledged to carry his gratitude to the city to all parts of Nebraska.

The comments came during a day in which he helped cut a ribbon celebrating the completion of a $370,000 downtown improvement project, claimed he doesn't yet know what his personal political future holds and discussed subjects ranging from highway funding to marijuana with newsmen and the student body at Northeastern Nebraska College.

"You are indeed the envy of the State of Nebraska, and I shall carry your message" about the state, he told a crowd assembled between 4th and 5th street in the middle of Norfolk Avenue, the state's thoroughfare.

The celebration marked the completion of an idea conceived in the summer of 1964. It includes new paving, sidewalks, traffic lights, street lights, off-street parking and a median strip planted with trees and shrubs, along the avenue from 1st to 7th streets.

Of the $370,000 cost, the businessmen whose stores front the improvements will pay approximately $193,000 in assessments. The City of Norfolk, the State of Nebraska and Consumers Public Power District will share the rest of the cost.

It was stressed that the state provided only $27,700, and that because Norfolk Avenue is State Highway 275.

"If the state can emulate what the City of Norfolk has done, indeed our future is bright," the governor told the outdoor crowd.

Meeting with news representatives at NNC, Gov. Tiemann conceded that Norfolk's example of self-help was an exception, not the usual rule. The trend is for communities to run to the higher levels of government for financial aid for improvements, he said, and he offered his "eternal gratitude" to the city for going against the trend.

Along the line of funding and construction, Tiemann praised the 1969 Legislature for establishing long-range plans for highway building, and asserted that highway work is not one of the inflationary-trend-setting projects in the country today.

'Hard To Fathom'

Asked how much success he thought he and officials of other states have had making that point to the federal government, he said "It's hard to fathom what the national administration will do . . .

"If the administration is really serious about fighting inflation, it should go all across the board," he said, and slice such projects as space exploration and the supersonic transport along with everything else.

On other subjects:

—The governor insisted he has not yet made a decision on his personal political plans. "I have two alternatives," he said, "run for reelection (as governor), or get out of politics altogether . . .

"Getting out altogether right now has great appeal . . ." he said. Asked for an expansion of that statement, he said, "After having nine and a half months of the Legislature, anything looks good."

Opposed By Right Wing

Asked about the same subject during his question and answer session with NNC students, the governor guessed that if he chooses to run again the "extreme right wing" will "probably put up a John Bircher" to oppose him in the GOP primary. "The right wing is very unhappy with me, and I am with them, so it's mutual," he said.

—Asked why he felt the enacted open housing law was so essential for the state, the governor charged that "Discrimination does abound in Nebraska . . . as it does everywhere."

A former secretary of his, a Negro, documented 75 cases of discrimination while seeking a residence, the governor said. "When she'd call on the telephone, the landlord would say, 'Sure, come on over, the rent is such and such, etc." but when she'd get there, he'd say, 'Oh, I'm sorry, I just rented the apartment,' " Tiemann said.

—Explaining his veto of LB979, which would have established a comprehensive community college plan, the governor said the bill had become "so completely unworkable" because of amendments its opponents had tacked to it that he had no choice. He charged it was "poorly drawn . . . and a victim of vote-swapping."

Norfolk store owners and chamber of commerce officers expressed the hope Thursday the street improvements will be followed by improvements to the stores fronting the avenue.

Nebraska Reservists Happy To Be Home

By JOHN ARMSTRONG
Associated Press Writer

Ft. Riley, Kan. (AP) — "Great!" signed Staff Sgt. Laurence Sowers. "Just great!"

Sowers was savoring the fact that he and other members of the 295th Ordnance Company, 5th Army, were back in the good old U.S.A.

"We all learned a lot in Vietnam" said the 34-year-old Hastings, Neb., native, "but the best part is being back. We all feel good, real good."

Sowers and about 75 other young men from central Nebraska were members of the Army Reserve unit sent to Vietnam in October, 1968.

The company arrived here from Vietnam Wednesday, and many of the Nebraska soldiers will see their families this weekend for the first time in more than a year.

Reservists Again

Members of the company came from York, Grand Island and Hastings areas. The company officially will be returned to reserve status in ceremonies at Hastings Oct. 18.

Capt. Warren F. Hodge, the regular Army officer who commanded the Nebraska company, had praise for the outfit's performance in Vietnam.

The company, stationed at Chu Lai, received, stored and issued ammunition and explosives for the famed Americal Division.

"Needless to say, we learned a lot about ammunition and how to handle it," said Sgt. Gary Camp, 29, of Wood River, Neb. I didn't have any close calls."

Spec. 5 Dallas Donscheski of Cotesfield, Neb., did have a close call, and he has the Bronze Star to prove it. Donscheski was the only member of the company to receive the Bronze Star for valor.

Donscheski was one of three soldiers who extinguished blazes at an ammunition supply point that was being hit by enemy mortar fire on Hill 63, June 17.

"With total disregard for his own safety," the Army citation reads, "he entered the pad of burning and exploding powder to combat the fire.

"His heroic actions not only saved ammunition and other material worth several million dollars but also prevented a greater loss of personnel and material . . ."

Donscheski, 26-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Donscheski, doesn't talk much about the incident.

"Let's just say Vietnam was an interesting experience, now that it's over with," he said.

Others Decorated

Nineteen other members of the company were presented the Bronze Star and commendation for meritorious service.

The Nebraskans are not only happy to be headed back home; they're happy that all the Nebraskans in the company survived.

There was a broken hip, some broken ankles, a collapsed lung, some crushed fingers and other assorted injuries in the outfit, but not one Nebraskan died and no one was seriously injured as a result of hostile action.

Meat Plant Closed Under New Law

Nebraska News

State director of Agriculture Elmer C. Schlaphoff has taken the first official regulatory action under the recently-enacted meat inspection law by summarily suspending the license of the Clay Center Meat Company, Clay Center, Nebraska.

The new inspection law provides that the director shall summarily suspend the license whenever an inspection reveals that conditions in the establishment constitute a menace to public health.

According to Schlaphoff, an inspection of the Clay Center establishment revealed that the sanitation of both facilities and equipment was "grossly inadequate to assure clean, wholesome products and, in addition, slaughtering and processing procedures were such as to adulterate the meat products being produced."

The director said hazardous conditions included unsanitary conditions on the kill floor, including improper handling of sewage, and the failure to proper clean equipment, such as saws and grinders, along with ineffective fly control.

To clarify the reason for the action taken, Schlaphoff stressed that the closing order resulted from improper sanitation and operational procedures, not from equipment or facilities deficiencies.

The suspension order will remain in effect until conditions specified in the inspection report are corrected.

Riverboat Bertrand To Be Buried Again

Missouri Valley, Iowa (AP) — The riverboat Bertrand, buried a full century in an old channel of the meandering Missouri River, is about to be buried again.

All the historic cargo has been removed from the ancient river craft, a Department of Interior spokesman said, and the Bertrand will now be buried for its own preservation.

"However, the boat will be backfilled in a way that anticipates it will be uncovered again in the future, said Dr. Wilfred D. Logan, National Park Service archeologist.

This backfilling is expected to begin Monday, which means that the public, which has watched some of the excavation work, will have only a few days left for a last look at the project, located at the DeSoto Bend wildlife refuge.

Dr. Logan said the wreckage lies below the ground water level and has been kept dry by use of pumps while its holds have been explored by scientists.

"We can't afford to keep the pump system in operation, particularly since final plans for treatment of the boat have not been developed," Logan explained.

Precipitation wil average from two to four-tenths of an inch, occurring as rain or showers over the weekend.

Summary Of Conditions

A cold front extends southward from a low in eastern North Dakota, through eastern South Dakota and central Nebraska, into northern Kansas. A high pressure cell to the northwest of the front extends into southwest Canada.

Clear to partly cloudy in the area Friday. Windy conditions can be expected on both sides of the front, along with about a 20-degree spread in temperatures. Only a slight chance of scattered showers with passage of the frontal system but the chance increases as it moves southeastward through extreme southeast Nebraska and southern Iowa.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

A word of advice would be in order for private developers of the land on both sides of O from 66th to 70th. This is the land which now appears certain for commercial development, having received the approval for such development of the City-County Planning Commission.

It has been noted by city officials that O St. will utlimately be widened to four lanes of traffic. This will leave no room for access roads between the street and the businesses that will soon be fronting on it.

At the same time, officials are of the opinion that the business development there will create traffic problems beyond the capacity of the streets involved to handle. Probably neither O nor 70th will be able to fully take care of the demands that will eventually be placed upon them.

★

This is not hard to understand. Here will be two streets meeting one another at a focal point loaded with business development. Additionally, both streets will be servicing business activity in all directions from their intersection.

If those who develop their business at 70th and O are smart, they will take all of this into consideration. They will provide as best they can for the traffic problems they know will exist.

These traffic problems are not just the city's problems. The city will get a lot of complaints if such problems develop but the businesses will experience a loss of money. Customers will not fight their way into any place, regardless of how good it is or what it has to offer.

Businesses which plan to develop near 70th and O would be well advised to consider an access or frontage road of their own, a traffic lane for public use on their own private property. They should consider, too, the removal of turns as much as possible from the 70th and O intersection.

★

They should attempt to plan their developments so that people can enter them at least a block away from the intersection. The entrances and exits provided should allow for quick movement, with any details of driving done once the motorists has actually left O or 70th.

If this is done, the developers will be doing themselves a big favor. It may cost them a little in terms of land use and in cost of development but they will thank themselves for it many times in the future.

If, on the other hand, they establish places with the standard driveways directly off and onto the street, they will have a lot of headaches in the future. The area involved has every promise of being a problem even under the best circumstances but a lot can and should be done by the private developers to make the problem less acute.

Planning Commission action in this matter marks a substantial change from the past. This area is one that has, for a long time, been a classic contest in zoning.

★

It is an area that was never prime residential land, at least in recent times. But it was an area, too, that was not prime business land from the point of view of good city planning.

Obviously, the cause of good city planning has not been served in the years of transition of this area from open countryside to commercial development. It is not a situation, however, with which the city cannot live.

Indeed, it is obvious that the city will now live with it. But more than that, even, is the fact that we can still go on and apply our zoning and our comprehensive plan in an intelligent and constructive manner.

This, it is hoped, is what the city will do. It is hoped that it will not consider the planning dam to be broken and every piece of land in town fair game for whatever use the owner wants to make of it. The transition at 70th and O is not an indictment of planning, but simply another step in the long process of the city's evolution.

White House Is Guarded As Closely As Fort Knox

WASHINGTON — Whatever the dimensions of the nationwide "moratorium" againt continued American presence in Vietnam set for Oct. 15, the White House and surrounding area seem certain to be in the center of the show.

Troop withdrawals and the Paris negotiations are moving much too slowly to suit supporters of the Oct. 15 movement and thus, in their minds, what once was "Johnson's war" is now Nixon's war." They want all U.S. forces withdrawn from Southeast Asia at once. Some die-hards really mean it in terms of immediacy; others say they are talking about a period of from two to three months.

☆ ☆ ☆

If the Oct. 15 people stop to think about it, they must know their goal is unachievable for two basic reasons — logistics and the announced policies of President Nixon.

This is pragmatism; not a matter of whether the anticipated demonstrators are right or wrong. It has nothing to do with their feelings, sincerely motivated or not. The U.S. simply is not gong to pull out of Vietnam all at once. Or out of Thailand, Korea or Germany —not all at once and not in any particular hurry.

While the Oct. 15 display, particularly the door-to-door aspects in the suburbs and larger residential communities, might have much merit of purpose and possibly some success, it will be something of a shame, a sad shame, if the participants in downtown Washington become whipped up emotionally and try to inundate either the Capitol, the Pentagon or the White House.

Come close but don't touch. That, in essence, has been police policy in the past.

☆ ☆ ☆

The Washington metropolitan police are perhaps among the best trained and experienced law-enforcement officers in the country when it comes to crowd control. They seldom panic, nor do they have a record of busting heads for the sheer hell of it.

The U.S. park police normally handle the area immediately surrounding the White House. Inside that high, black iron fence encircling the premises of 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue — this is the territory of the uniformed White House police who function literally as a branch of the U.S. Secret Service, agents of which control the tightest perimeter of all, the area immediately surrounding the president, wherever he may be.

For any of the Oct. 15 demonstrators who, for all their non-violent intentions, might become a bit worked up and have a go at the White House, here is some unsolicited advice: It would be just about as difficult to bust into Fort Knox or the underground Norad headquarters outside Colorado Springs.

New Supreme Court Era

The U.S. Supreme Court opened its 180th year this week with the beginning of the October, 1969, term. The court will hear arguments on a variety of cases during the first few weeks, including what is being described as a landmark challenge to the imposition of the death penalty — a decision which affects the lives of a majority of the almost 500 men now awaiting execution — and a Nebraska case in which the court could extend constitutional rights to juveniles charged with crimes.

The court must also decide whether to review a circuit court ruling that delayed desegregation of public schools in Mississippi. It will also hear new arguments on old controversies involving a wide range of issues: electronic eavesdropping, self-incrimination, free speech, separation of church and state (state aid and tax exemptions), the draft and many more.

Two factors, more than others, mark the opening of the new term. First, of course, is that the activist "Warren Court" with its liberal interpretations has given way to a court which has not yet earned an identity but which is expected to be much more moderate.

The views of new Chief Justice Burger and Justice-designate Haynsworth, or a man like Haynsworth, will be more conservative than those of the men they succeed and the court is thus expected not to advance the liberal record of the previous court, particularly in the areas of the rights of criminal suspects and civil rights.

Second, as pointed out by Congressional Quarterly, the delay in approving the nomination of Judge Haynsworth will create procedural difficulties for the court in that if an eight-man court evenly divides on a case, the ruling of the lower court is usually affirmed, or, possibly, the case is set for reargument at a time when there are nine sitting justices.

For obvious reasons, then, the Senate should forget political considerations and get on with approving or rejecting Judge Haynsworth or his alternative on the basis of judicial fitness so that the court can proceed with its business unhindered.

The Impossible Can Happen

Proof that the impossible can sometimes happen is seen in the growing prominence of the proposal for direct election of the president. Six months ago, this plan would not have been given half a chance to make it into reality.

But then, the plan was passed unanimously by the House of Representatives. It was given further strength when President Nixon gave it his blessing and it is now considered quite possible of passing the Senate.

This would leave it to the states. Once again, it was first felt that the direct election idea could never get the required 38 states to ratify it. But in a recent poll by the New York Times, it was found that the plan could possibly get the approval of 30 states right now.

Thus, direct election is not today the impossible dream it was even six months ago. Obviously, small states in population such as Nebraska would suffer a mathematical loss in voting strength under such a plan.

But what kind of real loss would they suffer? Mathematics is one thing and practical politics is another. Nebraska's electoral vote is certainly taken for granted today and gives us no political muscle at all on the national scene. It is very possible that the popular votes of our citizens would be a lot more important than the handful of electoral votes we have.

Besides, it is rather questionable ethics to argue that we should have a political advantage beyond our numbers. When you do argue that, what about the hundreds of thousands of voters on the minority side who are virtually disenfranchised through the electoral college system or any adaptation of it? If direct election of the president should ever prevail, it will be simply because it is the fairest and most practical method available to us, a fact of growing recognition.

REA Pressures Small Co-op Back Into Line As Big Power Companies Enlist Senate Aid

WASHINGTON — A small electrical cooperative, after surviving near strangulation by five big power companies, is now being forced by the Nixon administration and two heavyweight senators to compromise with its would-be killers.

The story would be isolated—heard only in a dozen small Louisiana communities—if a letter from Rural Electrification Administrator David Hamil and a confidential packet revealing the conspiracy had not been slipped to this column by two men willing to jeopardize their jobs to get out the facts.

The actions of Nixon - appointee Hamil, under the telephoned urgings of Sen. Spessard Holland, D-Fla., who controls the REA money faucet in the appropriations committee, do not bode well for community-owned electric power.

This includes 50 million Americans in almost every state, served by REA or publicly owned systems. Already in Indiana, consumers fear REA will lease a new, federally financed, $63 million co-op plant to a private power company.

The beginnings of the Louisiana co-op's efforts to break away from the private power monopoly began, ironically, in Hamil's days as REA administrator for President Eisenhower. And by 1962, the little co-op was working for a 2-per cent-interest REA loan, the rate set by law.

But five major power firms in the area were moving, too. And taking chances with anti-trust laws, they worked in concert to thwart the co-op's efforts to get the REA loan.

☆ ☆ ☆

This joint effort is proved by more than 50 pages of material sent to Senators Allen Ellender and Russell Long, both Louisiana Democrats. The copy given this column is headed "confidential" and signed by five power firms: Gulf States Utilities Company, Louisiana Power & Light Company New Orleans Public Service Inc., Central Louisiana Electric Company and Southwestern Electric Power Company.

These five firms, some out-of-state owned, sought to convince the two senators that a loan to the fledgling co-op was "illegal," and "beyond the scope of the authority of REA." It asked the senators to warn the REA of "the criticism which undoubtedly would arise." accused the REA of "a zeal to socialize the electric power industry" and called public-power advocates "empire builders."

The affable chairman of the first signatory firm, Glenn Richard of Gulf States Utilities, was reached at his headquarters in Beaumont, Texas, and asked whether the concerted action had raised an anti-trust specter at the Justice Department.

"Not so far, at any rate." he said cheerfully.

The five power firms disputed the co-op's claim to lower power rates, and for years blocked construction of two co-op generators and transmission lines. But finally, the plucky Louisiana electric cooperative won its court and administrative battles. The REA committed $56,521,000.

☆ ☆ ☆

This June Hamil fired off a private letter to the co-op's president laying down the law. Deputy REA administrator Everett Weitzell reluctantly confirmed that both he and Hamil received "admonitions" from Sen. Holland, long a spokesman for private power, on the Louisiana co-op. Although the senator who appropriates Hamil's money called "more than once," Weitzell denied Hamil was "pressured" into writing the letter.

Weitzell hopefully suggested this column ignore the co-op story lest it stir up "controversy" that had settled down. But the letter stirs up its own controversy:

"We have . . . discussed (the co-op loan) implications with appropriate officials of the Congress and the administration," said Hamil's letter. "Our conclusion is that it would be unwise to proceed with the loan as it now stands . . ."

Hamil, reversing his predecessor, said the co-op was too small to be economically operated — precisely the argument of the five power companies. Then Hamil openly threatened to revoke the loan contract unless the co-op compromised with the power companies on connecting lines and other issues.

If the co-op would make concessions, "steps can be taken to proceed with the advance of funds," said Hamil. The co-op is now sitting down with the power companies to see what can be salvaged for the consumers of Louisiana.

NOTE: The Justice Department, upholding its end in the tradition of strong antitrust action under GOP presidents, has moved against a power company in Minnesota. The Otter Trail Power Company has been charged in civil action with trying to thwart municipalities who want their own power systems.

American Role

Lincoln, Neb.

In your editorial, "What Protesters Forget," in The Star of October 7 you once again depict the Vietnam war as a clearcut case of aggression by one nation against another. The main fallacy in this assertion is your attempt to depict South Vietnam as a nation. Even President Johnson, in one of his rare moments of candor, admitted that our mission in Vietnam is one of "nation-building." That is to say, we are engaged in creating a nation where none now exists. In fact, the politically dominant elements in this "South Vietnamese nation" are Catholic refugees from North Vietnam who rule over a Buddhist majority and jail their political opponents.

You suggest that, in the event of our withdrawal from South Vietnam, a blood bath will ensue But whichever side "wins" the Vietnam war — the Viet Cong or the military oligarchs in Saigon — is going to engage in torture, murder and plunder, and inflict further misery on the hapless people of South Vietnam. At least an American withdrawal would bring an end to our participation in this purposeless bloodshed. It seems rather pointless to sacrifice still more American lives so that the South Vietnamese people may enjoy the dubious blessings of a thinly disguised military dictatorship instead of the evils of communism.

But the main reason we should withdraw is to safeguard our national interests, the interest of the free world. During the past five years, the Soviet Union has, at minimal cost to itself, tied us down to a seemingly eternal commitment in South Vietnam, while simultaneously expanding its influence and military presence in the Mediterranean, the Middle East, and the Indian Ocean, and almost closing the missile gap. Meanwhile, an over-extended, over-committed United States faces disunity and social unrest at home and is unable to exercise meaningful leadership in Western Europe, Latin America, and South Asia. And only a year ago, the dollar was in serious danger of devaluation. There is nothing patriotic in tolerating a continuation of this situation, in squandering our resources on an ally who cannot or will not stand up against an outnumbered enemy after 10 years of lavish American aid. Citizens who are really concerned about protesting the integrity of the free world should insist that we get on with the business of strengthening the economies, societies, and defense capabilities of our truly reliable allies, and that we build on areas of strength — Western Europe, Japan, India, Indonesia, Australia.

An intelligent relocation of priorities and re-evaluation of commitments are long overdue. Let us begin by terminating our sorry mission in Vietnam. And let us vow never again to use American draftees to perform police duties in native villages. It's a pretty sad government that can't police its own people. The proper role for the American soldier is that of liberator, not foreign occupant.

Giving Credit

Beatrice, Neb.

I have read a lot in the Beatrice and Lincoln papers about all the wonderful things being done at the Beatrice State Home, and about the new program director and the program he and others are getting under way. Many of these changes have been made by the superintendent at the home in the years he has been there. Let's give him some of the praise.

It should never be said that the patients have been put there and forgotten. I know they have wonderful medical care and that is the most important thing. I know they have a very dedicated staff. Some have been there 20, 30 and 40 years. They never give up when the going is a little rough. The home has always been more or less short of help, as far as getting the patients taken care of. I guess there never was enough money to go around, but that was no fault of the superintendent. At least he will always listen to the employes' problems and try to correct them.

We know the world and everything in it are changing, but I don't think we should be led to believe that miracles are going to happen in any mental institution overnight. So let's not shortchange the superintendent at the Beatrice State Home. The goal for the home has always been for programs and his record speaks for itself.

All the study committees, investigations and reports by efficiency experts who have been hired before just end up as a waste of the taxpayers' money. A recent project involving laundry should prove it.

New American Revolution Shaping Up

NEW YORK — Well, polish up the Liberty Bell; it's time to start planning our big 200th birthday bash — and already the bickering is loud enough to drown out "Yankee Doodle."

A mini-American Revolution II is brewing that would gladden the heart of that ole rebel himself, Patrick Henry.

Only this time the fight's got sex appeal. Tricia Nixon has somehow landed in the middle as referee, and anybody knows she's a lot prettier than Betsy Ross. (If the ladies of the D.A.R. will excuse me.)

It all began when somebody who checks on these things looked at a calendar and discovered 1976 will be the 200th anniversary of the singing of the Declaration of Independence. And don't quibble about that being six and a half years away. These things take time to do properly, you know.

First thing you do with a party is appont a committee, right? So the President, ever a man to do the proper thing, set up the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission.

Next, find a place to toss the wing-ding, right? Right. And that's when everything started to go wrong.

Because delegations from three cities — Philadelphia, Boston and Washington — rushed forth to overwhelm the commission with reasons why it should be held in each town. Each one thinks it is truly the "birthplace of American history," and each one has documented proof.

Just offhand, you might think Philadelphia has first dibs. They've still got a lot of the original scenery, including Independence Hall, where the Declaration was signed.

And don't forget the Liberty Bell . . . and the site where Betsy stitched up that first flag. They're even tolerably close to Valley Forge . . . and they can toss in the Deleware, where old George crossed.

But the Boston pitch is almost as convincing. They probably figure their party-giving reputation is better than almost anybody's. After all, people are STILL talking about that tea party they tossed 196 years ago.

And don't forget Paul Revere . . . and Bunker Hill . . . Lexington . . . and Concord. And never mind where Mistress Ross sewed the first flag, they've got the house she was BORN in.

☆ ☆ ☆

Washington backers think it's all very well to talk about those early beginnings and all, but where did the action finally wind up? On the banks of the Potomac, of course.

It is, they'll have you know, "every American's pilgrimage city." And if tourists get weary of looking at piles of government marble, they can always run over to Baltimore, where Francis Scott Key wrote his hit song. Or even down the river to George's country place.

You might wonder why these cities are so anxious to snag the Bicentennial Exposition, which is guaranteed to give everybody involved a six-year migraine.

Well, it ain't all patriotism, pal.

To begin with, it's a billion-dollar plum in the way of prestige and tourist spending, and a shot-in-the-cash-register for local industry and labor. And, when all the debris is cleared away there'll be plenty of permanent buildings left for park centers or museums or whatever.

That's why Tricia got cornered the other day on her preference. (After all, it's her Daddy who'll have the final say.) She was properly diplomatic. Said she thought it might be nice to spread it around a little, with different festivals all over the country. Then she smiled, very prettily.

Whoever gets it it's bound to be a dandy. Yankee Doodle, that is.

Committee To Study 'Prairie Park' Proposal

The city Park and Recreation Advisory Board Thursday named a committee to work out specific details for acquiring and utilizing prairie land near Lincoln Air Park West for a "Prairie Park."

Dr. Patrician Rand, an assistant professor of botany at the University of Nebraska, was named chairman of the committee.

Board members and city and county officials toured the prairie land, owned and managed by the Lincoln Airport Authority, prior to a meeting of the advisory board.

Dr. Rand pointed out during the tour that the land is one of the best pieces of prairie land in this area. She said that 120 different kinds of native grassland plants can be found within a half-acre tract.

The 640-acre area under consideration includes some 360 acres of native prairie land. It is located west of the air park and northwest of the base housing area.

Board members indicated that they are interested in acquiring only a portion — 160 acres perhaps — of the total area.

Park and Recreation Director James Ager noted that the area could also be used for winter activity. He said he did not think maintenance of the area would be a major problem.

Park Superintendent Don Smith pointed out, however, that he is "hurting for labor."

Dr. Rand said that the growth of the prairie grass would have to be controlled. She said burning the grass would likely be the best means.

She added that the grazing of cows on the grass — which is now being done — is beneficial as long as there are not too many cows on the field.

Board members raised the possibility of joining the university in leasing the land, but were told by Dr. Rand that although she could not state for sure the university's position the school has frowned on such arrangements in the past.

NU botany classes have been using the area in connection with prairie grass studies.

The study committee was asked to report its findings the first of next year.

Airport Authority Executive Director Rolland Harr assured board members that nothing would be done to harm use of the land for a possible "prairie park."

In other action, the board took under consideration requests made by citizens about park and recreation needs which the City Council earlier turned down for funding in the present fiscal year. The items had been presented to the council at a budget hearing.

Black Militant's Return Is Sought To Face Charges

Raleigh, N.C. (UPI) — North Carolina filed formal extradition papers with the state of Michigan Thursday asking the return of black militant Robert F. Williams.

Williams, a native of Monroe, N.C., is wanted on a 1961 kidnaping charge in Union County, N.C. He arrived in Detroit last month from London after spending eight years out of the country, most of them in Communist lands.

The office of North Carolina Gov. Bob Scott sent the request to Michigan Gov. William G. Milliken on behalf of Union County Solicitor M. G. Boyette Sr.

Tiemann's, Legislative Budget Compared

By Associated Press

The governor's office circulated Thursday a chart comparing the 1969 Legislature's appropriations with Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann's budget recommendations, and showing that the Legislature authorized the spending of nearly $36 million more of general fund money than Tiemann had recommended.

"The govermor's recommended budget, as he indicated to the Legislature in the special session of the Legislature in December of 1968, could have been financed by a 2½% sales tax and a 10% income tax," said an accompanying commentary. "It requires a 2½% sales tax and 13% income tax to raise the money necessary to fund the amount appropriated by the Legislature."

The governor's budget called for spending about $330.3 million, and the budget ultimately adopted by the Legislature totaled about $365.8 million, according to the chart.

Accounting for the $35.5 million difference was an increase of approximately $5.5 million in capital construction, an increase of $20 million in aid to public schools, an increase of approximately $10 million in operating budget and miscellaneous appropriations.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Friday

MENU TIP: Moon conjoined with Uranus in Libra suggests a combination of the delicate and unusual. Aroma and visual appeal are also essential ingredients today. If dining out, be selective. Accent quality and care, not necessarily ostentation. Eggs Benedict and souffles rate high. Imported foods and dining in restaurant featuring foreign foods advocated under these aspects.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Sudden decisions, actions are featured. You must be alert to methods utilized by competitiors. Old ways are not likely to suffice. In peersonal life, give special attention to mate.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Income through creative activities is highlighted. You need not stick to routine or habit. Break through to new, daring procedures. Be receptive to knowledge.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Emotions play major role. If single, you could be involved in dashing affair of heart. If married, there is general restlessness. Strive to rediscover romance. Dine out—have fun.

CANCER (June 21-July 22); Changes occur at home base. Financial backing comes from unexpected source. Have facts, plans outlined. Not wise to delegate important duties.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You may find yourself taking detours during journey. Be versatile. Creative thinking is an essential today. Take care with what you put on paper. Your humor could be misinterpreted.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Conserve assets. Avoid tendency to be careless with money. Long-range financial commitment not wise. Patience in this area could result in greater bargain.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Personal changes occur. Some you thought reacted in steady manner — do an about-face. Your appearance is of special importance. Balance and blend color of apparel.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Clandestine activities could receive glare of publicity. Know this and plan accordingly. Not a good day for keeping secrets. Don't try to hide facts.

SAGITTRAIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Friends could respond to requests quickly. Realize this, and as for what you need. Don't permit pride to stand in way of progress. Romantic evening in store.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): There is room at the top. Have confidence. invest in your own talents. Originality and independence are keys to success for yout oday.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Education, willingness to plan ahead are emphasized. Applies especially to journeys, future vacations. What appears far now may be closer than yu think.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Self-improvement subjects should be high on personal agenda. Find out the why of happenings. You can make significant progress if intellectually curious.

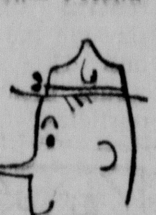
POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane



The Brownie troop held its first meeting. Everything went splendidly. Everybody got new International Friendship pins.

This is the last year for these Brownies. Next year they "fly up." It is a sentimental time. The flying-up Brownies are given a party—like a sergeant finishing his 20 years.

They then become Juniors. Entitled to swagger over younger Brownies.

"You think this is tough? You should have seen it in the old corps!"

☆ ☆ ☆

Brownies are muffins around seven and eight. They say The Brownie Promise aloud and together.

Can't remember it exactly, but it's a stirring thing. Full of being nice to people and helping around the house.

Then they come home and cry: "Make the bed? Why do I always have to make the bed?"

I said: "Because Brownies are helpers. Do you want me to make your bed?"

"Yes," she said.

I said: "Very well, I will make the bed. But I am going to call every Brownie's father and tell them I can't go out at night. Or have any fun. Or do anything. Because I have to make your bed."

They don't call me The Silver Fox for nothing.

☆ ☆ ☆

Two Brownies forgot it was Brownie Day and had not put on their uniforms. My Brownie could not find her knee-high Brownie socks.

We faked it with white boots. (If there were Brownie MPs, a lot of Brownies would have their weekend passes cancelled.)

The Brownie leader was in uniform — it has been altered to make it a miniskirt.

When the Brownie leader cannot stand the yackety-yak, she raises her hand for The Brownie Silence.

All the Brownies must raise their hands. And shut up! Or the Brownie leader will get a migrain headache or go out of her mind. Or something.

☆ ☆ ☆

Well, I must admit a bit of nostalgia for my old Boy Scout troop. Watching Brownie chicks putter around with talk of camping and picnics.

We were Troop 565. (I wonder if the old outfit ever holds a reunion? Maybe has a Last Man Club — with a Last Bottle.)

I was in Fox Patrol. We didn't name patrols military style — Able, Baker, Charlie, Dog, Easy, Fox. When we said Fox Patrol, we meant the foxy animal.

We signaled each other by barking like foxes. (The Rattlesnake Patrol carried pebbles in condensed milk cans. They rattled at each other.)

☆ ☆ ☆

We wore Boy Scout belts with snaps on which we hung wonderful equipment: A whistle. A knife with many working tool blades. A compass and a waterproof match box.

We hung on a rope. In an emergency of being stuck on a high cliff, we could let ourselves down. (We saw Pearl White do that in the Saturday afternoon serial, "The Perils of Pauline.")

A fellow Scout would come under your window and bark: "Arf, arf."

We stuck our head out and barked back.

"What on earth's that noise?" said grandma. "Sounds like whooping cough. Only you had that last year."

☆ ☆ ☆

We had instructions on how to make fire by rubbing sticks together. (Not even the scoutmaster could do it. But it was a handy thing to know.)

We were clean, brave, reverent. And nine other things I cannot recall.

"I was a Boy Scout once," I told the Brownie. "And I had to make my bed."

But she just gave me one of those bored looks.

There's not much respect for veterans these days. Arf, arf.

☆ ☆ ☆

The Brownies have some important projects. Like visiting a cookie factory. You see how cookies are made. Then you get to eat some.

The best cookies are the ones that are brown on both sides and you pry the top off and lick the white cream filling. Everybody hopes they will visit that factory.

"Can you do some of the driving this year?" asked the Brownie leader. They always call on the reserves. She should have seen it in the old troop.

1,326 Students Enrolled At NWU

Official enrollment of 1,326 students for the first semester of 1969-70 at Nebraska Wesleyan University was announced Thursday.

The figure, fifth largest enrollment in NWU history, compares with 1,458 in 1968. Enrollment by classes include freshmen, 378; sophomores, 363; juniors 276, seniors 212 and nurses and unclassified students, 97.

There are 689 men and 637 women on campus this year.

Record Expected

Bombay, India (AP) — Bombay officials expect to confiscate a record amount of smuggled goods this year customs sources said. In 1968 an estimated $15.5 million worth of gold, silver and luxury articles were seized. In the first six months of this year, close to $8 million worth of contraband was confiscated.

Lack Of Funds Forces YW To Delay One-Story Addition

The Lincoln YWCA has decided to postpone building a planned one-story addition to the central building at 1432 N.

Instead, revised building plans call only for extensive remodeling of the present structure.

According to Mrs. J. Edmunds Miller, president of the Lincoln YWCA, the cost of the two projects would have been considerably more than the YWCA gained in the recent YMCA-YWCA Capital Fund Drive.

'Not Feasible'

Mrs. Miller said the organization's board of trustees decided, after reviewing the situation, that borrowing the balance needed "was not feasible in the present economic climate.'

She noted that at the time the total cost of the two the total cost of the two building projects was estimated at $565,000. "The YWCA's one-seventh share of the funds from the drive will be approximately $275,000," she said.

She also noted that the property given the YWCA by the Woods Charitable Fund in exchange for the old Annie Miller Hall "is in the form of property not readily converted into cash funds.'

"While the income from that property was intended to aid us in the expansion and improvement of YWCA facilities, it is not sufficient to affect the decision to postpone our addition for the time being," Mrs. Miller added.

Plans Outlined

In a report to the YWCA membership, Mrs. Evar Anderson chairman of the building modernization committee, said the first priority for remodeling would be "delayed maintenance' projects, including modernized wiring, plumbing, air conditioning, heating and safety systems.

Also in remodeling plans are a multipurpose area for the youth program, a refreshment kitchen, improvements to the second-floor gym and a child care center for mothers participating in the YWCA program.

Plans also include construction of a new east entrance with a ramp for the physically limited and a swing-in drive.

TESTIMONY

Miss June Collins, a booking agent for Vietnam service clubs, told the Senate investigations committee which is looking into alleged enlisted men's graft about kickbacks to club managers.

State, NU Launch Government Intern Program

The State of Nebraska and the University of Nebraska have launched a program whereby university students can get actual management training in government through a unique internship.

The program is in the interdepartmental area of business in cooperation with the personnel office of the state. It is being coordinated by a committee of three: Dr. Henry Albers, chairman of the department of management; Dr. Richard M. Bourne, professor of management; and John M. Thornton, state personnel director.

Designed for master of arts degree candidates, the program is open to most baccalaureate degree holders not necessarily those with majors in business administration.

The program is divided into two areas: resident instruction and the internship. Required in the resident instruction will be 36 semester hours to be taken in two semesters or more.

All students will be required to carry a basic program in management which, along with the seminars, will account for half the credit hours required. The other half of the hours may be taken in such related areas as accounting, finance, systems, data processing and personnel.

The first intern in this new program is working under Thornton; a second intern will start work in January. Thornton says his office will be in charge of intern placement but each department head will have charge of the intern's activities and work.

According to Thornton, at least 11 state offices have expressed a desire to participate in the program including the governor's office, the secretary of state's office, the department of labor and the department of roads. Thornton explains the interns, who will be paid for their services, may be placed in administrative jobs in any of these various state departments as needed.

Dr. Bourne says the internship program will. for the first time at the university, offer students an opportunity to prepare in the managem ent-government field. This internship program replaces the thesis. he adds.

According to Dr. Albers, there is a possibility the program will be receiving some federal funding available through the higher education act. He says fellowships would then be available to participants.

'Vietnam Moratorium' Organizers Announce Protests' Basic Format

The steering committee for the "Vietnam Moratorium" has announced the basic format for the peace march and antiwar protest planned here Wednesday.

The demonstration will form north of Love Memorial Library on the University of Nebraska campus at 1 p.m.

Several musical groups plus individual folk singers will start the event.

Guest speakers at the rally will include faculty members Dr. Edgar Pearlstein and Dr. William Campbell of the university's physics department, Dr. Robert Narveson, English; Dr. Ivan Volgyes, political science; and Dr. Loren Casement of the economics department.

Al Siporin, moratorium spokesman, and Dr. Robert Keohane of the national moratorium committee will also address the group.

Following the program, the marchers will move down 13th St. to K, then follow K to the north steps of the State Capitol.

Twenty persons, representing students, faculty and the Lincoln community, will then read a list of the Nebraskans killed in the Vietnam war, along with a list of those who died as a result of fighting the past week.

Mike Shonsy, NU coordinator of the moratorium said the "response to the moratorium has been phenomenal. We haven't had to go out and recruit people. People have been coming to us."

Shonsy stated that representatives of nearly all the Nebraska campuses have contacted the committee about plans to send representative student groups to the protest.

Prior to Wednesday afternoon's culmination of the drive, events on the campus have been arranged to build enthusiasm among students.

On Monday and Tuesday, representatives will visit the various university living units to conduct discussions on the Vietnam war.

Two films, "The Time of the Locust," and "17th Parallel — Vietnam in War," will be shown continuously Wednesday in the Nebraska Union.

Shonsy emphasizing community support of the demonstration said, "We feel that this is a Lincoln community movement as well as a university community movement. We strongly urge community support."

The NU moratorium is one of many similar demonstrations scheduled Wednesday in a nationwide protest of the Vietnam war.

"This moratorium will continue until the war ends," Shonsy said. "Troop withdrawals aren't enough."

Already, plans are being formulated for two moratoriums in November and three the following month if the war continues.

Landlord Reports Furnished House Now Unfurnished

A Lincoln landlord told police Thursday that a man to whom he rented a furnished house took all the furniture and apparently left town.

Victor Gruenemeier, of 1300 No. 10th reported that on April 14 he rented a house at 1203 No. 7th.

When Gruenemeier returned to the house this week with a sofa, he found that the other furniture, worth an estimated $850 to $900, had been stolen, police said.

Bethel Baptist Delays Action On New Budget

At their annual meeting, members of the Bethel Baptist Church selected officers for the coming year but delayed action on their 1970 budget until Dec. 3.

Officers for the church include Clifford Lynch, Sunday school superintendent; Al Saylor, training union director; Thurmon Nolan, choir director; Rory Wood, pianist, and Joyce Martin, organist.

The offices of church treasurer and chairman of deacons will be filled during the December meeting.

Plans were outlined for special evangelistic services Nov. 12-19 at the church, with the Rev. Calvin Miller of the Westside Baptist Church in Omaha as guest evangelist. The Rev. Miller is author of "Once Upon a Tree.'

The services will be conducted nightly, beginning at 7:30, according to the Rev. Johnny Cox, pastor.

Blaze Damages 2-Story Garage

A fire in an old two-story garage at 2110 A was quickly controlled by the Lincoln Fire Department Thursday afternoon.

The fire began after a seven-year-old boy had been seen on second floor "probably playing with matches," according to a fire official. The second floor, originally a living unit, was being used as a storage room and hobby shop.

No one was injured, but fire officials estimated the damage as "considerable."

Five Charged With Possession Of Marijuana

Five youths, arrested Wednesday after being found with what police termed a sizeable amount of marijuana, were charged Thursday in Lancaster County Court with possession of marijuana.

One of the youths, John T. Brubaker, 22, of Terry, Mont., was charged with a felony offense of being in possession of more than one-half pound of marijuana.

He requested a preliminary hearing which was set for Nov. 12. Judge Ralph Slocum set bond at $2,000.

Two of the other four charged with misdemeanor offenses pleaded guilty and were sentenced to seven days in jail and ordered to take instruction in drug misuse.

The other two pleaded innocent and trial for each was set for Nov. 12.

All Six Crewmen Killed In Crash Of Stratofortress

Merced, Calif. (UPI) — A B52 Stratofortress crashed and burned Wednesday night while making touch-and-go landings at Castle Air Force Base. All six crewmen were killed.

A witness said it appeared the giant jet bomber exploded on impact. The Air Force could not confirm this.

"You could hardly identify the plane," the witness said. "You couldn't tell what was a wing or what was landing gear." He said only about 75 feet of the rear section of the fuselage remained intact.

Housing Authority Hikes Student Rent At 23rd, Y

The Lincoln Housing Authority Thursday increased the rent for married university students at the 23rd and Y housing project. And the authority adopted revised maximum income levels for families seeking admission to the leased housing program.

Housing Authority Commissioner Carroll Thompson had recommended that the minimum rental charge to university students be increased $10 so that elderly and low-income families wanting to live in the new housing project could pay the normal minimum rent.

Commissioners had earlier decided that the project would be economically feasible only if all three categories of families paid the same minimum rents: $60 for a one-bedroom, $70 for a two-bedroom and $80 for a three-bedroom apartment.

New Rents

Elderly persons will now pay a minimum rent of $35; Low-income families will pay a minimum of $60 for a one-bedroom, $65 for a two-bedroom and $70 for a three-bedroom apartment.

Rents are also increased depending upon the individual family's income level.

Under the leased housing program, the housing authority, using federal funds, makes up the difference between the rent charged and what the normal rent would be.

It was pointed out at the meeting that one reason why elderly persons had not been applying for units in the apartment complex was that they could not afford the higher rent.

Student Rates

Married university students will now pay $70 for a one-bedroom, $80 for a two-bedroom and $90 for a three-bedroom apartment.

Authority chairman Kenneth King said he hopes the increased rent from the university students would be sufficient to make up the difference caused by the new lower rents to elderly and low-income families.

Leased Housing Director Herbert Hamilton said he opposed raising student rents, saying more time is needed to study the financial situation.

More To Move

Hamilton told commissioners that two families already had moved into the apartment complex last week and that more would be moved in as soon as apartments are ready for occupancy.

City Human Rights Officer Gerald Henderson, a member of the applicant screening committee, reported on the progress of interviewing applicants.

Both Henderson and Hamilton emphasized that applications can still be made for the project. However, those who have already applied for the leased housing program must reapply to be considered for the 23rd and Y project.

The new rent plan must still be approved by the Chicago office of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

However, the revised maximum income levels for admission into the leased housing program went into effect immediately after the meeting Thursday.

The commissioners had to readopt the nuw income levels because HUD made revisions in the increases earlier approved by the housing authority.

'235' Program

The housing authority had raised all income levels at the request of Lincoln home builders and real estate firms so that the income levels also would be increased for families buying homes through the federal subsidy program known as "235." The income levels for "235" are set at 135% of the income levels for the housing authority's leased housing program.

A person applying for "235" can also subtract both five per cent and $300 per child from his gross income in determining the family's income allowance for home buying.

According to realtor Lou Sommerhouser, "235" rates also became effective Thursday.

New income levels for the leased housing program are as follows: one person family, $2,900; two persons, $3,600; three, $4,000; four, $4,400: five, $4,700; six, $5,100; seven, $5,400 eight, $5,600; nine, $6,000, and ten persons, $6,200.

$600 Increase

Families already housed will have a $600 increase in the maximum income allowed for continued occupancy.

New income levels for the home buying program are as follows: One person family, $3,915; two persons, $4,860; three, $5,400; four, $5,940; five, $6,345; six, $6,885; seven, $7,290; eight, $7,560; nine, $8,100, and ten persons, $8,370.

As an example, a family of five earning a gross income of $7,500 would fall within the income requirements of the home buying program since the adjusted income would be $6,225.

Demo Coalition Backs National War Moratorium

The executive committee of the Nebraska Democratic Coalition Thursday endorsed the National Vietnam War Moratorium scheduled for next Wednesday.

In a statement, the Coalition strongly criticized President Nixon for lack of progress toward ending the war and the increasing military involvement in other portions of Southeast Asia.

"This lack of movement toward a settlement of the conflict is in marked contrast to the progress achieved during 1968 when the war was the subject of extensive public debate," the Cialition stated.

"It is clear that Americans want the war to end. We must again make this feeling visible to our government in Washington."

Concert Group's Drive Is Second Most Successful

The Lincoln Community Concert Association has just completed its second most successful membership drive, Executive Secretary Ellen Shannon said Wednesday.

Mrs. Shannon said the group's total membership this year will be just a little under 4,500 persons. With reports almost all in, the figure now is over 4,200, she said.

The concert group's season opens next Wednesday with piano-duo Ferrante and Teicher. Other concerts scheduled this winter for members are Mame, Nov. 16: La Traviata, Mar. 4; the Norman Luboff Choir, Mar. 16; and Addis and Crofut, April 7.

Committee To Seek Lower Fares For Elderly City Bus Passengers

The Senior Citizens Advisory Council to the Lincoln Action Program named a three-member committee Thursday to negotiate with Lincoln City Lines Inc. on reducing or eliminating bus fares for elderly persons.

Committee members were appointed after the council designated transportation improvement as a major need for the elderly in the Lincoln area.

According to Lana Balka, a community program coordinator for LAP, the committee will also talk to Lincoln City Lines officials about securing greater "consideration" for the elderly from bus drivers.

In other action, the council named June Carmen as a nominee for a vacant position on the Lincoln Housing Authority.

Supreme Court To Rule On Integration

Washington (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed Thursday to decide whether public schools in Mississippi — and possibly throughout the South — must be integrated immediately.

The court will rule on an appeal by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People Legal Defense and Educational Fund that demands immediate desegregation of 222 public schools in 33 Mississippi districts.

The Justice Department had advised the court to reject the appeal or postpone action until desegregation plans were filed with a federal court in Mississippi. By order of the U.S. Circuit Court in New Orleans these plans are due by Dec. 1.

But the high court shunned the advice and granted a hearing to the fund Oct. 23.

The court reached this decision during a private conference in which the justices considered hundreds of appeals that have accumulated over the summer. An announcement before Monday was unexpected and lent an extra measure of urgency to the court's view of the dispute.

The appeal asks the court to discard its "all deliberate speed" formula for school desegregation and to demand immediate abolition of racially identifiable schools across the South.

Court's 1954 Ruling

The court declared racially separate public schools unconstitutional in 1954. In 1955 it recognized school districts faced problems in desegregating, but said they should comply with the 1954 ruling with "all deliberate speed."

In the Mississippi case, the circuit court in August lifted a deadline that schools in the district have workable desegregation plans by the start of the current school year. The circuit court postponed the deadline until Dec. 1 after Robert H. Finch, secretary of health, education and welfare, said the time was too short in view of "administration and logistical difficulties."

The fund then appealed to the Supreme Court in behalf of several Negro families. The 222 schools involved are attended by 135,700 Negro and white children.

Request First Since '54

Finch's request for a delay was the first such request in a schools case by the federal government since the 1954 ruling. After the fund appealed to the Supreme Court, the government said in a memorandum by Solicitor General Erwin N. Griswold that the "deliberate speed" formula was no longer applicable to school desegregation suits and consequently there was no need for the court to hear the appeal in order to abandon the formula.

Griswold said the court in several decisions since 1955 has indicated school boards are constitutionally obligated to devise and implement plans that will promptly and realistically convert dual, segregated school systems into unitary, desegregated systems.

He said the U.S. Office of Education was proceeding "with dispatch" to help formulate desegregation plans for the Mississippi schools and that they would be submitted as quickly as possible and certainly by Dec. 1.

Travel To West Curtailed Sharply By Czechoslovakia

Prague (AP) — Czechoslovakia barred its citizens from private travel to the West Thursday in the most drastic tightening of frontier control since the 1968 Soviet invasion.

The cutoff went into effect at midnight Wednesday and caught hundreds of travelers at airports and frontier crossings and brought dismay to the Czechs and Slovaks.

Relatively free travel to the West started even before the ouster of Stalinist Antonin Novotny as president in 1968 and had been one of the last freedoms remaining after the Soviet invasion.

Federal government spokesman Frantisek Kouril announced over television that all single-trip exist visas have been invalidated for travel to Western nations. About 100,000 travelers hold such visas, he said.

A sign at police headquarters proclaimed that the passport and exit permit office was closed for the day. Small knots of despairing travelers, some with their suitcases, gathered outside.

At Prague airport, all Czechoslovak passengers were scratched from all flights to the West, except for those in possession of official passports for official business.

Delinquency Division To Go Under New Corrections Unit

By KEN NEUNDORF
Star Staff Writer

The new state division of juvenile delinquency will be placed within the new division of corrections in an effort to reconcile the intent of two seemingly inconsistent bills passed by the Legislature Penal Complex, Warden Maurice Sigler announced Thursday.

Sigler, who serves as director of the new corrections division, said the plan seems to be the only way to reconcile the "situation of two separate authorities being charged with the same responsibility."

The two measures delegated authority to both divisions for administering the Boys Training School and the Girls Training School and the supervision of parole for the facilities, Sigler told a news conference.

LB1307, LB603

LB1307, he said, established the division of corrections to administer the two facilities and gave the director authority over parole service and custody of all persons committed.

LB603, however, set up the division of juvenile delinquency headed by a deputy director who would supervise the institutions and all juvenile parole in the state.

"On their face, these two bills are inconsistent," Sigler said in a letter seeking advice from the state attorney general.

The letter explained, however, that by placing the juvenile division within the division of corrections the situation could provide "commendable merit."

'No Comparison'

Sigler said the division of corrections was authorized as a comprehensive agency with necessary staff and funding while the juvenile division "has no comparable legislative direction nor staff nor funds."

"As a matter of fact," the letter continued, "only $45,000 was appropriated for the biennium, which will scarcely cover more than the salary and expenses of the deputy director."

A reply from Mel Kammerlohr, assistant attorney general, said the plan "appears to us to be a legally acceptable reconciliation of the two bills."

Under the bills, the new divisions are part of the Department of Public Institutions.

Plans For Parolees

Lloyd Watts, newly appointed state parole administrator, attended the news conference and explained in general terms plans for working with parolees.

He said the addition of two new parole officers might cause present parole districts to shift slightly, but he said they will basically include five divisions based in Lincoln, Omaha, Kearney, Norfolk and Ogallala.

Seven parole officers will work in Omaha, including three supervising adults three supervising juveniles and one woman officer with both adult and juvenile women parolees.

One adult officer and one juvenile officer will be based in Lincoln, Watts said. The other three officers will handle both adult and juvenile parolees in the outstate areas.

Watts and Sigler agreed that more officers are needed for the outstate areas, but Sigler noted that funds are available for only 12 officers.

Bright Light, Thought Meteor, Seen Over Much Of Midwest

From Press Reports

A bright green light, believed to have been caused by a meteor entering the atmosphere, startled residents of a large section of the Midwest early Thursday.

A Federal Aviation Agency spokesman said the agency received reports the light was seen in Iowa, Nebraska, and as far south as Fort Worth, Tex.

Some persons reported hearing an explosion at the same time.

The Missouri Highway Patrol station at Lee's Summit received reports from truck drivers and other persons on the roads at 2:25 a.m.

More precise information on location and characteristics of the light will become available later from cameras which nightly monitor the skies for meteor trails.

As part of a Smithsonian Institution Meteorite recovery project headquartered in Lincoln, 16 camera stations are permanently located in a seven-state area. Each station has four cameras which maintain an automatic watch for meteor trails. Film is processed and analyzed in Lincoln.

Gunther Schwartz of Lincoln, field station manager for the project, said the film can provide evidence of a meteor's velocity, its altitude when its light went out, and the probable mass at that altitude, along with the general landing location if the meteor survived its fiery flight.

Chances are slight that a meteorite actually landed, he said, because 99.99% of them burn up in the atmosphere.

Schwartz said his office contacted various air traffic control towers about the latest sighting and their reports located a bright meteor in the southeast Kansas region.

School Land Sales Foes Plan Appeal

The State Supreme court will be asked within the next week or 10 days to re-hear the appeal challenging the forced sale of state school lands, the plaintiff in the challenging lawsuit, Loren Belker of Lincoln, said Thursday.

A motion for rehearing customarily precedes any appeal to a higher court.

"While not assuming what the results of a motion for rehearing might be, we would not consider it the end of the matter," Belker said.

"We are not going to let this thing die."

A four-judge majority of the seven-member State Supreme Court held last Friday that the 1965 legislative act as amended in 1967, requiring state school land parcels to be sold when current leases expire, is unconstitutional. However, the state constitution requires that five judges concure to hold a legislative act unconstitutional. As a result, the minority opinion prevailed in the school lands case.

Court Names 3 To Constitutional Revision Group

The State Supreme Court announced Thursday its appointment of three practicing attorneys to the 12-member Nebraska Constitutional Revision Commission.

They are Rodney R. Smith of South Sioux City, representing the First Congressional District; James W. R. Brown of Omaha, Second District, and Walter P. Lauritsen of Grand Island, Third District.

The commission was created by the 1969 Legislature to study the state constitution and recommend amendments to the 1971 Legislature.

Besides the three members named by the Supreme Court, three other members have been appointed by the governor and six selected by the Legislature.

AFL-CIO Trying To Set Up Union For Ward Aides

Efforts to organize an AFL-CIO affiliated union for Lincoln State Hospital ward aides is underway, it was disclosed Thursday.

A meeting for interested employes is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Labor Temple, 46th and Y.

Under a 1969 law that becomes effective later this year, state employes may bargain for wages and working conditions.

The Lincoln Association of Psychiatric Technicians has voted not to become a bargaining representative in any wage negotiations.

Policeman Named

Washington (UPI) — Clarence M. Coster, Bloomington, Minn., police chief since 1967, was named by President Nixon to be associate administrator of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, the new anti-crime agency designed to help local police improve their operation.

Activity In Suburbia

You don't need a crystal ball to be able to see into suburbia's future — all you need is a copy of the University of Nebraska's football schedule for the weeks to come. Then you could predict that this coming weekend will not bring an overflow of out-of-town guests, but many Lincoln residents will be traveling, one way or another, to Columbia, Mo. Looking even further into the October activities to come, you could say that Lincoln will be invaded by Kansas residents on Oct. 18, most of whom will not be cheering for the Cornhuskers on that day.

There is no schedule for suburban activity as there is for Big Red football, but with the help of a "crystal ball," we will do a bit of looking into the past, present, and future of Lincoln's suburbs.

Our "crystal ball" tells us that there is to be a double birthday celebration in Trendwood this very evening. A dinner party will mark the birthday anniversaries of Mrs. James Weber and Mrs. Frank Dudek, who have been celebrating their Oct. 11 birthdays together for several years.

Mr. and Mrs. Weber will be host and hostess for the dinner party and attending will be their son John; Mr. and Mrs. Dudek and their son David; Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Davis and Matthew of Valparaiso and Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Petersen.

There is both past and future news from Wedgewood Manor this morning, and all of it is from 158 Wedgewood Dr. That is the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hendricks, who were host and hostess to two California guests last weekend and will entertain the same couple this weekend.

Their guests were — and will be — Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Smith of Oakland, Calif., who stopped for the weekend on their way to Falls City, and will spend this weekend in Lincoln before heading back to the West Coast.

Our Meadow Lane news is of some new Lincoln arrivals who are not new residents of the capitol city . . .

The "old newcomers" are Mr. and Mrs. James H. Snyder and sons, David, 10, and Ken, 5. Mr. and Mrs. Snyder and their family started out in Lincoln, but moved to Dayton, Ohio some ten months ago. Now they are back in Lincoln — hopefully to stay — and residing at 1608 Urbana Lane.

MISS DIANE KONKOLESKI

The engagement of Miss Diane Kay Knokoleski of Lincoln, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Konkoleski of Ord, to John F. Belschner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Belschner of Lincoln is announced this morning by the bride-elect's parents.

The wedding is planned for Saturday, Jan. 3.

Miss Konkoleski is careering in Lincoln.

Anniversary Party

Friday, Oct. 10, is a very special day for Mr. and Mrs. Ray C. Johnson. It is their 50th wedding anniversary.

The celebrating, however, will be done on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 11, when their sons and daughters-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ray C. Johnson Jr., of Rochester, Minn.; Mr. and Mrs. James Edward Johnson of San Jose, Calif., and Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson of Overland Park, Kan., and their daughter, Mrs. Charlotte Peters of Lincoln, are hosts and hostesses at a reception which will be held in the parlors of Westminster Presbyterian Church.

The hours are from 2 o'clock until 4 o'clock and all friends are asked to call without further invitation.

Included among the guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Johnson's 15 grandchildren.

To run out of milk is to run out for milk.
Stock up for the weekend.

Bridal Plans, Parties

For her marriage to Robert Vergith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Vergith of Martell, on Saturday, Oct. 18, Miss Kathy Hornung has named Miss Joyce Stanley as her maid of honor for the ceremony, which will be solemnized at an 11 o'clock morning service at the Capitol City Christian Church.

The bridesmaid will be Miss Nadine Beeman, and Miss Lisa Slater of Oak Lawn, Ill., will be the flower girl.

Serving Mr. Vergith as best man will be Lucky Lortz, and Steven Umphreys will be the groomsman.

Brides At Autumn Weddings

Tall arrangements of chrysanthemums and gladioli in autumn gold formed the background in the Second Baptist Church on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 13, for the wedding of Miss Trudi Mae Martin, daughter of Mrs. Frances Martin, and John Lee Moon, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Moon of Beatrice. The ceremony was solemnized at 3 o'clock by the Rev. Earl Byleen, and Mrs. Tracy Clement, organist, played the wedding music.

Slender frocks of avacado green chiffon over taffeta with yellow trim were worn by Miss Susan Martin, as the maid of honor, and the bridesmaid, Miss Vickie Dominguez. Each carried a single yellow rose.

Robert Moon of Beatrice served as best man, and seating the guests were Steven Kottwitz of Blue Hill, and Charles Martin.

For her wedding gown, the bride chose traditional white satin. The deep yoke of Alencon lace created a high throatline and continued into bell sleeves, edged with natural scallops of the lace, and the lace also formed the panel train which extended to cotillion length. Her circular, bouffant illusion veil was held by a petite coronet of pearls, and she carried a bouquet of white and yellow roses.

Both students at the University of Nebraska, Mr. and Mrs. Moon will make their home at 4827 Colfax.

For the wedding of Miss Charlotte Warren of Lincoln, daughter of Mrs. Volney Warren of Emerson, Iowa, and Roger Neumeister, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Neumeister of Otoe, boquets of all-white gladioli and chrysanthemums appointed the altar of St. Paul Methodist Church in Lincoln, Sunday, Sept. 14. Dr. Clarence Forsberg read the lines of the 7 o'clock service.

Floor-length frocks of silk crepe and lace in royal blue were worn by Mrs. Leonard Snyder of Longmont, Colo., who was her sister's matron of honor, and the bridesmaids, Miss Jewell Warren of Omaha, also a sister of the bride, and Mrs. Darrel Brinkhoff of Avoca, the bridegroom's sister.

Fred Neumeister of Weeping Water, served as best man, and the groomsmen were Gayle Neumeister of Otoe, and Keith McKay, Walton. Seating the guests were Bill Neumeister of Peru; Darrel Brinkhoff, Avoca; and Keith Stephens, Lincoln.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Dean Warren of Emerson, Iowa, the bride appeared in a colonial frock of white Chantilly lace and tulle. The long-sleeved bodice and redingote skirt of lace was complemented by a front panel of tulle tiers and continued at the back into a chapel train.

The bride has been a member of the office staff of the State Department of Labor, and Mr. Neumeister recently completed service with the Army.

AROUND TOWN

That decade within the span of 1930 and 1940 seems just like yesterday to the 150-plus L Club members who have come from here, there and everywhere to attend a weekend reunion. The L Club, in case you didn't know, is composed of mighty athletes who made many a Lincoln High School foe bite the dust.

None of them will don football gear this evening, but they will be cheering for Lincoln High when it meets Northeast at Seacrest Field. The entire group, and the distaff side of the club, will sit together during the game, and afterward will proceed to the Villager for food and considerable reminiscing.

The banquet will be held on Saturday evening at the Legion Club with former Lincoln High School coach, Bill Pfeiff, the master of ceremonies. Also on hand will be other former and popular coaches, Stu Ballard, who now resides in Iowa, and Ralph Beechner. Incidentally — we hear that Mr. Ballard and one of his former Lincoln High football stars, Paul Amen, have a golf date this afternoon . . .

We learned that some former Lincoln residents are spending several days in town — They are Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. London of Sacramento, Calif., who are the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cather, Jr.

.On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Cather will compliment the visitors when they entertain old friends, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Knudtson and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Cooper, Jr., at dinner at their home.

Award Winner

The Lincoln City Council of Epsilon Sigma Alpha sorority for career women has announced the presentation of its "Outstanding Youth Award," to Lucia Demma. 12 year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Demma.

The award and a savings bond were given to Lucia because of her deep sense of responsibility for others. In her essay, Lucia stated, "I can serve my country well by helping others, by fighting for world peace by respecting the flag, praying for people in other countries and giving a good example."

A student at the Villa Marie Home and School for the Educable Mentally Retarded at the Marian Center near Waverly, Lucia was recommeded by staff members for her "thankfulness, her innocent joy and charm — her heart simply encompasses the whole world. If anyone has a problem, she makes it her problem

The award was presented by Mrs. Kenneth Dill, council president, and Mrs. Robert Miller vice president.

NU Wives' Tea

All wives of new engineering students at the University of Nebraska are especially invited to the tea to be held Sunday afternoon, Oct. 19, at the home of Mrs. John Davis, 6520 Everett.

Hostesses for the 2 o'clock to 4:30 o'clock tea will be the members of the NU Engineering Students' Wives Club.

AAUW Program Planned

Abby: it is up to you to change attitude

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My first husband died, leaving me with two daughters, ages 2 and 6. I stayed single for six years. We lived with my parents while I worked, so naturally the girls are spoiled rotten.

My problem: About a year ago I married a wonderful man who had never been married before. Abby, he couldn't be nicer to me and the girls, but they treat him shamefully. They say, "We don't have to listen to you — you aren't our REAL father.'.'They can be sweet as pie to him when they want something, but after the; get it, they go back to their hateful ways.

He has tried so hard to make them like him. I love this man, Abby, and I hate to see him hurt. What can I do?

NEEDS HELP

DEAR NEEDS: First, may I take exception to your statement, "We lived with my parents while I worked, so naturally the girls are spoiled rotten.'' Why, "naturally"? Many working mothers have instilled respect and discipline in their children, so don't blame your parents.

From what you say, your daughters are out of your control, so I advise professional counseling. Inquire of their school principal. Otherwise, face the alternatives. Your daughters will force you to choose between them and your good husband. Or your husband will find life with you and your daughters intolerable and HE will make a choice, and take a walk. And who could blame him?

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "LONELY IN MEMPHIS": Don't sit around feeling sorry for yourself. If nobody calls you — call someone. Get out of the house and find someone who needs a lift more than you do. You won't have to look far.

"Tis better to have loved and lost than to have run out of milk on the weekend."

TEST YOUR PLAY

1. You are declarer with the West hand at Four Spades and North leads the nine of clubs. How would you play the hand?

West		East
♠KJ762	N	♠AQ4
♥Q4	W E	♥J63
♦A1095	S	♦K8
♣63		♣AKJ82

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Six Hearts. North leads the nine of hearts, South following suit. How would you play the hand?

West		East
♠107	N	♠AQ
♥KQ10862	W E	♥AJ53
♦A53	S	♦K864
♣84		♣AKJ

1. You begin with nine tricks, but if you try to ruff a diamond in dummy to acquire your tenth, you may run into all kinds of complications and go down.

Actually, there is a simple way of playing the hand that assures the contract if the trumps are divided either 3-2 or 4-1. You can force the opponents to establish your tenth trick for you.

Win the club lead with the ace and draw the adverse trumps, discarding a club from dummy if necessary.

Now lead a club from your hand. If North follows low, finesse the eight. Even if South started with four or five clubs to the Q-10, he cannot stop you from making the contract whatever he returns.

Suppose he leads a diamond. Follow low from your hand, win North's jack or queen with the king, discard a heart on the king of clubs and then lead a diamond to the nine. Win or lose, the most the defenders can take is a heart, a diamond and a club.

Suppose South returns a heart instead. Follow low and, after North wins with the king or ace, establish a heart trick by conceding the queen. This line of play also brings you to ten tricks. All you lose is a club and two hearts.

2. The best method of play, after drawing trumps and cashing the ace of clubs, is to lead a club and finesse the jack. If the finesse wins, you're home, so let's assume it loses to the queen and a club is returned.

After discarding a diamond on dummy's third club, cash the A-K of diamonds and ruff a diamond. If the suit is divided 3-3, dummy's last diamond becomes your twelfth trick. If the diamonds are divided unevenly, you still have the spade finesse to fall back on.

This succession of plays offers the maximum number of chances to make the contract. Of course, all three possibilities may fail, in which case you go down one, if this happens, you can always try Canasta for a while.

Institutions Dept. Raise Date Eyed

The State Institutions Department is expected next week to decide on an effective date for a scheduled 5% across-the-board say raise for some 4,000 of the department's employes.

Whether to allow the raises in November, or sometime after Christmas — that's the question.

The added pay, atop the general 5% pay raise granted state government employes generally, was authorized by the Legislature in an appropriation measure, LB1096, passed on the session's last day. However, the bill did not carry the emergency clause and thus will not become effective until Christmas Day, three months after session adjournment.

The appropriation was designed to accommodate a pay boost effective Nov. 1.

There is enough money in the Department's budget to permit the pay boost to take effect in November, and Statehouse sources said there is legal authority for the move to be made before Dec. 25.

Institutions Director Don Duncan returns Monday from a two-week vacation. A decision on the pay boost is expected to follow.

Members Of 2 Interim Study Units Named

The names of senators assigned to two more interim study committees were announced Thursday by the Legislative Council Executive Board.

Members of committees numbered one through 18 had been announced Tuesday.

The 20 committees will examine subjects set forth in 43 legislative resolutions prior to the next session of the Unicameral.

Committee No. 19, the Telecommunications Committee, will be chaired by Sen. William F. Swanson of Lincoln.

Members of the committee are Sens. Robert Clark of Sidney, Herbert Duis of Gothenberg, Wayne Ziebarth of Wilcox, Richard Marvel of Hastings, Rudolf Kokes of Ord, Richard Proud of Omaha and William Skarda, also of Omaha.

Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly will chair the building committee, No. 20.

Members are Sens. C. W. Holmquist of Oakland, Marvel, Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff and Rick Budd of Nebraska City.

House Crime Unit To Study Results Here

The House Select Committee on Crime will take a close look at Lincoln's progress in hlting the increase of juvenile crime when it holds hearings in the Capital City Saturday.

"Lincoln has made remarkable progress in this critical area," Rep. Robert Denney said Thursday.

"In 1966 and 1967, Lincoln had a 33% increase in juvenile crime over the respective preceeding years.

"Yet, in 1968, there was only a 1% increase and a likewise similar increase for the first six months of 1969.

"I believe Lincoln is on the right track and the committee can perhaps implement some of the worthwhile Lincoln programs nationally through federal legislation."

Denney, Nebraska's First District Republican congressman, is a member of the committee.

Witnesses scheduled to appear at the Lincoln hearing include Neal Hafemeister, coordinator for social studies at the Lincoln Public Schools; Dr. Max Poole, coordinator on drug education at the Lincoln Public Schools; Ben Goble, chief of the Lincoln Activities League of the Police Department, and Jan Gradwohl, assistant county attorney.

The hearings will be held in the East Chamber at the Statehouse, beginning at 10:30 a.m.

Rep. Claude Pepper of Florida is committee chairman.

The Big One

To Nebraskans and Missourians, this weekend's game between the Tigers and Huskers at Columbia, Mo., shaped up as a biggie many moons ago.

And nothing has happened during those changes of the moon to lessen the importance of the affair that pits two teams that have visions of upsetting Oklahoma's role as Big Eight favorite.

Both have been scoring at school record paces and both have become noted in recent years for their tough defenses.

One of the trends that can take place in a game with such importance is for both teams to stay in a shell, fearful of making a mistake that could give the other an advantage.

This is Missouri's usual strategy in any ball game; it is not Nebraska's and if the Huskers are to win, they must take some chances.

One pro scout claims the way to beat Missouri is by doing one of two things—either stopping their running game or beating them deep a couple of times with long passes.

The Huskers have the potential to do both.

Last week this corner was 37-13 for .740, making the season mark 115-34-1 for a .770 percentage. This week:

The Big Eight

NEBRASKA 14, Missouri 10 . . . Don't be surprised if a couple of touchdowns are added to each team's totals. Don't forget it's possible to score on defense as well as on offense.

KANSAS STATE 28, Kansas 7 . . . K State coach Vince Gibson has been saying all along, "Wait until my kids start playing and Pepper's kids start playing. Then we'll see who's doing the best job."

COLORADO 21, Iowa State 14 . . . The Buffs are going after their 400th victory and Bobby Anderson is too much for the Cyclones whether he's at tailback or quarterback.

TEXAS 38, Oklahoma 21 . . . The Sooners have had five weeks to prepare, but that may not have been enough time.

The Top Ten

OHIO STATE 27, Michigan State 14 . . . The Buckeyes are No. 1 and they're not about to let anyone forget it. it.

ARKANSAS 41, Baylor 7 . . . The Hogs are onl7 No. 2, but they're trying to prove they're No. 1.

SOUTHERN CAL 22, Stanford 21 . . . If you're looking for an upset, this might be it.

PENN STATE 24, Westt Virginia 13. If the Nittany Lions don't get beat in the Midlands, they're not going to get beat in their own backyard.

GEORGIA 20, Mississsippi 14 . . . The Bulldogs may prove to everyone that they're the best in the South.

PURDUE 34, Michigan 17 . . . The Boilermakers are about ready to start making reservations in Pasadena for the Christmas Holidays.

Geddes' Cooking Ambitions May Have To Wait

. . . PRO BALL AND LEARNING TO COOK MAY STAND IN WAY OF HIS BEING A CHEF

By LEW FERGUSON

Associated Press Sports Writer

For a football player with aspirations to play professionally, Ken Geddes is really just a softie.

Opponents of Nebraska will argue with that, but that's because they don't really know Geddes, the Cornhuskers' 6-foot-3, 224-pound senior defensive middle guard from Boys Town.

Geddes, you see, was a home economics major when he enrolled at Nebraska. Now he's in education with an eye toward maybe being a kindergarten teacher.

But his secret ambition is to be a great chef, and turn that into a restaurant business. The only drawback is he doesn't know much about cooking, except for some basics like boiling spaghetti.

"I want to be a chef, and then have my own restaurant," Geddes says. "I can't cook but I want to go to cooking school when I get out of college and learn to cook.

"The first thing I ever cooked was spaghetti. I love to cook that. I make my own sauce. No, I won't specialize in Italian food.

"I was a home ec major when I first came here. I was the only male in my class. I took some ribbing but I didn't care. I liked it a lot, but the home ec classes were on the East Campus and I had trouble getting out there, so I gave it up.

"Now, I'm in elementary education. If I taught, I'd like to teach kindergarten. I just like little kids."

Geddes probably will wind up taking a fling at pro football first, however.

An all-Big Eight selection at linebacker in 1968 as a junior. Geddes was moved to middle guard by coach Bob Devaney for his senior season with the Cornhuskers. He put on 12 pounds to play in the line.

"I feel just as agile and quick as before despite the extra weight," he said. "I even feel a little quicker . . . If I do get drafted by the pros, I'll probably be a linebacker . . .

"Then, I'm going to be a chef. A man's heart is where the food is."

BUCS NAME MURTAUGH

...Shepard Replaced By 'Retired' Manager

Pittsburgh (AP) — Danny Murtaugh, manager of 1960 Pittsburgh Pirates' world champions, was named manager Thursday of the Pirates, replacing Larry Shepard who was fired two weeks ago.

The announcement of Murtaugh's appointment caught newsmen by surprise. Murtaugh stepped down as Pirates' manager in 1964 because of ill health.

Speculation had centered on Pirates' coach Bill Virdon and minor league manager Don Hoak.

Murtaugh got to the majors as a player for the Philadelphia Phillies in 1941. He went into the service in 1944.

Returning to baseball he played for Philadelphia and the old Boston Braves plus a couple of minor league teams before going to Pittsburgh in 1948.

That season was one of his best. He hit .290 and drove in 71 runs, a career high, and led league second basemen in putouts, assists and double plays.

His last year in the majors as a player was with the Pirates in 1951. He managed New Orleans for three years and Charleston for one.

In 1964 when Murtaugh, the compact Irishman from Chester, Pa., retired, the Pirates finished sixth.

He remained with the Pirates to do some scouting and work with the farm club organization.

His two most successful years as manager were in 1958 when the Pirates finished second after being seventh the previous season and in 1960. He was named National League Manager of the Year in each of those seasons.

He became Pittsburgh manager in August of 1957 when Bobby Bragan was fired.

In seven full years as manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates Murtaugh had one pennant winner.

The Pirates won their first National League flag in 33 years in 1960 and went on to defeat the New York Yankees in the World Series.

The announcement was made aboard the Gateway Clipper, a paddle wheel boat, by general manager Joe Brown as the boat cruised down one of Pittsburgh's three rivers. The boat made a jaunt up to the new Three Rivers Stadium where the Pirates will play next year and turned around.

Shephard couldn't bring a pennant winner to Pittsburgh even with four players hitting over .300 and Brown fired him with four days remaining in the season. The Pirates finished third in the NL East in 1969.

Coach Alex Grammas managed the club the last days of the season.

At Mizzou L. J. Means 'Loquacious Jocularity'

. . . LARROM JACKSON A 'BIG' TALKER

Columbia, Mo. — Larron Jackson is merely a pseudonym for Missouri's 257-pound tackle. L.J. really stands for "loquacious jocularity."

The mammoth junior blocker loves to talk and he's full of fun. When Jackson laughs, the ground trembles. His frequent chuckles sound like rumblings and his loud laughter resembles Vince Lombardi's deep-throated thunder.

Jackson constantly talks it up on the offensive line. His holler tactics come from his all-America days at St. Louis's Soldan high school.

"It's a carry-over from high school. We try to have a spirited practice with all kinds of sayings. It keeps everybody's spirit up and practice moves a lot quicker."

Despite his massive frame, the 6-3½ Jackson moves quickly himself. When he weighed 230, he was timed in 10.8 for 100 yards. But as a youngster Larron was a little stout.

"I was the biggest guy in my age group so I never got bullied but by the same token, I never bullied anyone else. Up until high school I was kind of fat. The kids never teased me about it because even when I was fat I could do everything anyone else could. I was a halfback in touch football," he said proudly in his bass tones.

When Larron entered high school he stood 5-11 and weighed 183. He progressed to 6-1, 191 as a sophomore, 6-3, 212 as a junior and finally to 6-3½, 230 when he earned all-America accolades.

"It created quite a stir at school. Soldan's last all-America had been in 1961 and I was the first tackle. They still have my name on a plaque on the wall. It's the Tom Lombardo Award given to the outstanding scholar-athlete."

Jackson is the first to say all his grades are not Phi Beta Kappa quality but when it comes to numbers he's in business. Along with Nebraska's Mike Wynn and Bob Liggett, Jackson has a data processing problem to contend with this week.

"I've always liked messing around with numbers. I wanted to do something with math or electrical engineering. My older brother is an electrical engineer for IBM and I wanted to follow him. That's not likely but I like accounting. I'm going to be an apprentice accountant next summer."

Accounting doesn't carry much glory but neither does the offensive line. Yet, Larron finds satisfaction in his work.

"I like to drive a guy out. You get a lot of pleasure out of a good trap block. We're unsung heroes on a good play but it doesn't matter. I want to be better than Francis Peay who to my knowledge is the best tackle who ever wore the black and gold."

Garrulous Larron Jackson has this and another Big Eight season ahead to try to earn that praise for himself.

Reds Name Anderson Manager

Cincinnati (AP) — George "Sparky" Anderson, who guided minor league teams to four pennants in five years, was appointed Thursday as the Cincinnati Reds manager one day after Dave Bristol was released.

Anderson, who becomes the major league's youngest manager at the age of 35, coached San Diego this year and only Wednesday was named a coach for the California Angels.

"I appreciate the opportunity here," Anderson said at a news conference. "This is a very talented ball club. You have to have talent to win a pennant."

Bristol, 36, was let go after Robert Howsam, vice president and general manager, said he felt the Reds needed a managerial change. Howsam, offered Bristol a front office position.

Anderson's minor league teams won four straight pennants and each year, the farm club was an affiliate of a major league team of which Howsam served as general manager.

Howsam introduced Anderson, saying that he "has an excellent record in handling and conditioning of pitchers. We sincerely feel he has the potential to become one of the league's premier managers."

"We think he has fine leadership qualities and the ability to get the most out of players," Howsam continued.

Anderson played for the Philadelphia Phillies in 1959 as an infielder. He spent a total of nine years in the minor leagues and began managing in 1964 — at Toronto of the International league.

"I don't think anyone in his first year as manager could ask for a club with better talent," Anderson said regarding the hard hitting Reds, bothered by pitching trouble.

NU Frosh To Open Season At Missouri

Columbia, Mo.—Nebraska's freshman football team steps out of the era of specialization as it opens the 1969 season at Missouri this afternoon.

Coach Jim Ross' players will see action on both offense and defense this season in a move designed to help the varsity coaching staff better evaluate and position players for the start of 1970 spring practice.

"We lose a lot of players this year," says head coach Bob Devaney, "and we'd like to know what our freshman do best before we get started with spring practice."

Ross hopes to platoon by quarters, starting one team on offense and another on defense in the first quarter and then flip-flopping them to the other side in the second quarter.

Seeing double duty may cut down the efficiency of the yearlings, but Ross is optimistic about the season. Physically, at least, the freshmen compare favorably with past rookie squads.

The opening offensive backfield includes two second-semester freshmen, quarterback Max Linder of Plattsmouth and fullback George Eiben of Cleveland. Both were ticketed for arrival a year ago, but postponed their arrival on campus to have back surgery.

They'll be joined by Omaha Tech's Johnny Rodgers at right halfback and Bill Olds of Kansas City, Kan., at left halfback.

Two other home-state products, split end Frosty Anderson of Scottsbluff and guard Dan Anderson of Fremont, will start on Linder's club.

The rest of the front line includes Californian Kelly Schulz at tight end, Minnesotan Monte Johnson and New Jersey's Daryl White at tackles, and Pennsylvanians Bruce Boyer and Joe Duffy at center and guard.

When this unit turns to defense Omaha's Bob Wolfe will come in at end and Bob Jones of Illinois will play safety.

The opening defensive lineup will include seven Nebraskans — end Doug Johnson of Omaha, linebackers Jon Strong of Fremont and Tom Deyke of Columbus and backs John O'Connell and Mike Peetz of Sidney, Joe Blahak of Columbus and Randy Butts of Grand Island.

Rounding out the team are tackles Marc Douglas of California and Rich Glover of New Jersey, end John Dutton of South Dakota and middle guard Willie Harper of Ohio.

When this outfit moves to the attack, Lincoln's Al Austin will become a tackle and Texan Randy Curtis will play at split end.

The 2:30 p.m. contest also marks the season opener for Missouri.

Word from Columbia indicates that the Mizzou frosh are well-stocked in the line, but a little below normal strength in the backfield.

—TACKLE HAS MOUTH INFECTION—

Husker Traveling Squad May Not Include McGhee

By HAL BROWN

Star Sports Editor

The makeup of Nebraska's 47-man traveling squad for today's flight to Missouri remained uncertain Thursday night and the picture won't be cleared up until after a visit to a dentist this morning.

At question is the condition of offensive tackle Donnie McGhee, who is suffering from a mouth infection as the result of some impacted wisdom teeth.

"He couldn't even talk today," Husker head coach Bob Devaney said Thursday after his squad wound up preparations for Saturday's Big Eight opener with Missouri at Columbia.

"He has an appointment with the dentist Friday morning and I told him to let me know what happens then," Devaney added.

If McGhee is unable to make the trip, Devaney said he would take both I-back Jeff Hughes and split end Dale Didur, but if McGhee makes a quick recovery, the Husker coach would have to decide which o: the two to leave home to get down to the 47 men permitted by Big Eight rules.

"At this time, McGhee is the most doubtful," Devaney pointed out, "But Hughes still isn't running at full speed."

The Husker coach already has decided to replace Hughes with Bill Kosch as the deep man along with Mike Green on kickoffs and plans to use Bill Bomberger as the No. 2 running back behind Jeff Kinney.

Devaney said Bomberger also would be the No. 2 punter and place kicker Saturday.

And if McGhee is unable to go, Bob Newton would have to operate as a swing man at both offensive tackle posts.

Devaney said it was unlikely that center Glenn Patterson, a former tackle, would see duty at his old spot, pointing out, "He hasn't worked at tackle this fall and our offensive assignments are a lot different this season than they were when he was at tackle."

Another factor there, Devaney said, is that Missouri offers more varied defensive patterns than any team the Huskers have faced so far.

"About the only thing you can be sure of about Missouri's defense," he observed, "is that they'll have two big ends coming at you."

The travel squad:

Tigers Favored

All three football forecasters for the two major wire services are forecasting a Missouri victory.

Will Grimsley of The Associated Press sees a 24-18 Missouri win with the thought, "Terry McMillan if by air and Joe Moore if by land — the Tigers are tusk-toothed."

Herschel Nissenson of AP says Missouri will win, noting, "The Cornhuskers have been improving, but not enough for the likes of Missouri."

Milton Richman of United Press International calls for a Tiger win.

6,000 Huskers Going

Nebraska ticket manager Jim Pittenger estimates the Nebraska contingent at Missouri will number nearly 6,000.

Fans Staying Over

Noting that his cross country team meets Missouri at Columbia Saturday morning, NU track coach Frank Sevigne observes, "I understand a few of the fans, who are going down for the cross country meet are even going to stay over for the football game."

Northeast Challenges Links; Pius X Hosts Fremont Club

By VIRGIL PARKER

Prep Sports Writer

Capital City high school football fans have a full slate of games from which to choose this weekend. But they face an agonizing decision on Friday night with two top battles scheduled at the same time.

Another head-knocking intra-city tussle will take place at Seacrest Field when defending state champion Lincoln High tangles with Northeast, while Pius X will host Fremont on its home gridiron.

Seacrest Field will also be the scene of a Saturday night encounter, as East entertains Beatrice.

The other Lincoln eleven, coach Frank Solich's Southeast Knights, travel to Grand Island. After winning its first three starts, Southeast dropped a 21-19 cliffhanger to Fremont last Friday.

Fremont handled Grand Island, 25-12, but the Islanders have shown rapid improvement lately. Against the only other common opponent, Grand Island topped North Platte, 21-14, a team against which the Knights recorded their opening win by a 14-6 count.

Coach Andy Loehr's Lincoln High club has now gone 17 games without a defeat, since losing to Grand Island midway through the 1967 campaign.

"We hope to keep the string alive," Loehr said, "but we know that Northeast has a lot of tough running backs. They have a greater number of experienced players returned from last year," he added, "so we'll have to be at our best."

Loehr expressed pleasure over the showing of his defensive unit so far this fall. "They've played with more consistency and fewer mistakes than the offense," he observed. "Our biggest chore continues to try to get that same kind of consistency out of our offense."

The Links squeezed out a narrow 14-13 victory over crosstown rival East last weekend, after recording wins over Hastings and Scottsbluff before playing Pius X to a 7-7 tie.

East had captured three in a row before the loss to Lincoln High. When Spartan head coach Lee Zentic was asked if it's bounce-back time for his club against Beatrice, he answered that "it really should never have been bounce-down time."

Zentic explained that he didn't want to take anything away from the Links win, "but we made a lot of little mistakes and stopped ourselves most of the time."

Zentic added that "Beatrice really scares me. They've got a strong line and a tough-running 210-pound fullback. Pius had a lot of trouble with them. My only hope is that our kids will be mad at themselves after losing and be ready to play this time."

Coach Vince Aldrich's Pius X crew faces its third straight Class A top ten rated team in Fremont. His 'Bolts opened with a 9-6 victory over Beatrice, then played Lincoln High to a standoff. Last week Pius battled Northeast to a draw until the final minute and a half before losing, 6-0.

Fremont, though losing its opener to Northeast, has stormed back with three impressive wins in a row, including last week's victory over top ranked Southeast.

Hardwick's Career Studded With Wins

. . . ACCOMPLISHMENTS NEARLY UNKNOWN

UNDER-RATED BOWLER . . . Hardwick.

The scene: The pressroom just after the $70,000 Miller High Life Open in Milwaukee.

The speaker: Billy Hardwick, the winner.

The subject: Billy Hardwick, the bowler.

Affable and easy-going, the 27-year-old professional bowler who now lists Louisville, Ky., as his home, ticked off a list of accomplishments in the previous year which largely had been overlooked by the nation's bowling press.

Starting with the Professional Bowlers Association's (PBA's) winter tour of 1968, Hardwick had racked up official earnings just shy of $60,000 and somehow, to Hardwick and many others' surprise, the feat had been accomplished in near anonymity.

The $10,000 he had just received from Miller Brewing officials had pushed this year's earnings past $24,000 and he had won another $35,455 the year previous.

A look at his record up to Milwaukee showed a string of first, second and third place finishes that no PBA player had put together before and compared favorably with the overall record of Bowler of the Year Jim Stefanich of Joliet, Ill., who had won six championships during 1968.

For example: 1968 . . . third at Phoenix, third at Tampa, second BPAA All-Star, First at Seattle, third at Portland, second at Fresno, third at Tucson, third at Houston, second at Grand Haven, second at Waukegan, third in the Japan Gold Cup and second at Joliet.

In 1969 the skein continued with a third at San Jose, a first at Denver, a third at Kansas City and the Miller Open victory.

"I was just a little curious," Hardwick laughed, "when the All-American team was announced and I was on the second team." "Oh well, he continued, "I'll try to win another one."

Win another he did. In the annual BPAA All-Star in Miami Beach in May, Hardwick made a shambles of an outstanding field and raced to another victory, this one worth $8,000.

The win regained the official money standings lead for him heading into the PBA's summer tour. The victory also gave Hardwick three legs on professional bowling's "Big Four" He now has won the Firestone Tournament of Champions, the PBA National Championship and the BPAA All-Star, missing so far only the ABC Masters.

Actually Hardwick had been back in the professional bowling spotlight since 1967 after having nearly droped out of it for two years.

As a 21-year-old youngster, Hardwick had set the pin world agog in 1963-64 and early '65 with official earnings totalling nearly $100,000 during that time.

A nosedive late in '65 and during nearly all of 1966 had dropped him out of the limelight, but underneath his outwardly joking manner, Hardwick was working hard to regain the touch that had carried him to a PBA national Championship, a victory in the $100,000 Firestone Tournament of Champions and six other PBA victories.

That he more than regained that touch is best evidenced by tracing the accomplishments he numbered in that pressroom conference, proof too that Hardwick had been concentrating on his bowling during all of that time and that he plans to stay on top now that he's back.

PBA CHAMPIONSHIPS AND YEARLING WINNINGS

1961—$550.

1963—Mobile, Ala. Phoenix; Los Angeles; PBA National Championship $33,265.

1964—Birmingham; Pontiac, Mich.; Costa Mesa, Calif. $28,407.

1965—$100,000 Firestone Tournament of Champions $34,517.

1966—$8,430.

1967—$21,090

1968—Seattle—$35,455.

OTHER TITLES

BPAA—All-Star 1969.

ABC—Singles and all events 1964.

All American (1964-1965).

Sanctioned 300 games: 1.

1969 winter tour highlights—Cashed in 11 of the 12 tournaments in which he competed Finished 1st at Denver and in the Miller High Life Open at Milwaukee, 3rd at San Jose, 3rd at Ebonite Open and 4th at Buffalo. He led the PBA winter average race with 212. 239 pins per game. Won $27,575, and then aded $8,000 for wining the BPAA All-Star, giving him a total of $35,757.

Hardwick is expected to compete in the Lincoln Open Bowling Tournament, a stop on the fall tour, at Hollywood Bowl Nov. 13-16.

Queen Is A Man With A Goatee

Philadelphia (UPI)—Temple University named a man Homecoming Queen Thursday.

Marc (Margo) Frantz, who wears a goatee and bills his measurements as 45-34-45, beat 11 girls entered in the contest.

Frantz, 19, said he entered to generate some interest in the annual routine. He has not disclosed what he intends to wear next Saturday when he rides in the traditional open convertible at the head of the Homecoming parade.

Prime Buc Candidate Hoak Dies

Pittsburgh (AP) — Don Hoak, a fiery competitor who helped the Pittsburgh Pirates become the world champions in 1960 died Thursday, a few hours after the managerial job he wanted badly was filled by his former manager Danny Murtaugh.

Hoak, 41, was found slumped over the wheel of his car in the Shadyside area of Pittsburgh where he lived and police rushed him to a nearby hospital.

A hospital spokesman said Hoak died of a heart attack.

Hoak was working for a small Pittsburgh steel company in public relations.

A former third baseman, Hoak entered the major leagues as a Brooklyn Dodger in 1954 and played with Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati Reds before he was traded to the Pirates in 1959 with catcher Smokey Burgess and pitcher Harvey Haddix for Frank Thomas, Jim Pendleton and Johnny Powers.

Hoak managed the Pirates' Columbus farm club to a second place finish in 1969. He managed the Salem, Va., farm club in 1968.

Hoak was reported to have said he would not manage Columbus next year if he didn't get the Pirate manager job.

But general manager Joe L. Brown, at the news conference announcing Murtaugh's appointment, said "the man who managed Columbus last year can have the job this year if he wants it, rumors to the contrary. But if a man isn't happy with us, we want him to do what will please him. That's why we would release him even though he has an option — which is a technical thing — on the job."

NY Mets Look Forward To World Series Opener

. . . SEAVER TO PITCH FIRST GAME

New York (AP) — The eager New York Mets worked out in warm sunshine on the repatched turf of Shea Stadium Thursday afternoon and then took off for Baltimore and their World Series date Saturday with the Orioles.

Manager Gil Hodges said there would be no changes in his announced plans of starting Tom Seaver 25-7 in the opener and using his right-handed lineup against Mike Cuellar 23-11, the lefty who has been announced as the Orioles' opening pitcher.

Jerry Koosman 17-9, due to go in the second game for the Mets, threw batting practice and reported the cold that has bothered him in the last week was much better. Seaver had worked for 15 minutes Wednesday afternoon so he did not throw again.

First baseman Donn Clendenon, third baseman Ed Charles, right fielder Ron Swoboda and second baseman Al Weis will get their chance to make a contribution after watching most of the National League playoffs from the bench. Only Weis saw action in those games as a late-inning defensive replacement.

Hodges is benching first baseman Ed Kranepool, third baseman Wayne Garrett, right fielder Art Shamsky and second baseman Ken Boswell, a quartet which hit for a .380 average in the three-game sweep over Atlanta.

Clendenon, acquired from Montreal June 15, is eager to get a shot at the Orioles although somewhat concerned he might be rusty because he hasn't played in a week.

Charles, 36, approaches his first series with the enthusiasm of a rookie. Although he gave way to Garrett this year and did not see as much action as in 1968, the veteran who is known as The Glider is one of the most popular Mets.

For Swoboda the visit to Baltimore is a return home to play before the family and friends.

"The big thing is getting a chance to play," said Swoboda.

"I'm tired of being a cheerleader. I have no gripes about it because the guy ahead of me (Shamsky, .538 against Atlanta) did a good job but I want to play."

Weis, who seldom has much to say but fills in any position in the infield and chips in with an occasional extra base hit, also is happy to be in there against the American League. He played for the Chicago White Sox from 1962 to 1967, sitting out the last half of the 1967 season after undergoing knee surgery following a collision with the Orioles' Frank Robinson. Both remember the day well for Robinson suffered double vision for a year.

Hodges plans a 12:30 p.m. CDT workout at Baltimore Friday afternoon after a long meeting with the players to go over the Baltimore ball club. The manager and his staff are familiar with Baltimore from their days together at Washington and they have the latest information from Bob Scheffing and Sheriff Robinson who scouted the Orioles against the Minnesota Twins in the American League playoffs.

Although the Orioles are 8-5 favorites and hold a .265 to .242 team batting edge, 175-109 in home runs and an earned run average advantage of 2.83 to 2.99, the Mets firmly believe they are the team of destiny.

A team that was 100-1 on opening day doesn't flinch at 8-5 odds in the World Series when they can't get less than $10,000 each and can get as much as $15,000.

Doane's Mike Sallier Top Scorer

Kansas City (AP) — Flashy halfback Mike Sallier of Doane College, Crete, Neb., is the individual scoring leader in National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics statistics released Thursday.

Sallier scored two touchdowns in Doane's 40-16 victory over Midland College last Saturday, increasing his point total to 60 on 10 touchdowns in four games.

That's six more points than has been scored by anyone of the other NAIA colleges.

Sallier also ranks fifth in rushing with 616 yards on 132 carries, an average of 4.7 yards per carry.

Sallier and quarterback Larry Green have sparked Doane to four straight wins this year, extending its unbeaten string to 33 games, longest in the nation.

Green ranks 30th in individual total offense, while Rocky Gonnella of the University of Nebraska at Omaha ranks fourth in that category and Tim Turman of Chadron State College ranks 20th.

Gonnella, who ranks third in the NAIA in individual passing, has averaged 271.6 yards of total offense per game. His favorite receiver, Tom McKernan, is seventh in NAIA statistics in pass receiving with 24 catches for 358 yards.

Turman is 27th in individual passing.

In team statistics, Doane ranks sixth in total offense and ninth in rushing offense, averaging 419.5 yards a game, 262 of it on the ground.

Chadron State stands seventh in total offense and 17th in passing offense, while Nebraska at Omaha is 16th in total offense and fourth in passing offense.

Kearney State College ranks 21st in rushing defense.

—'WEATHER TOO BAD'—

Probe Reveals Decision Of Pilot Cost Rocky Life

Washington (AP) — The light-plane crash that killed retired heavyweight boxing champion Rocky Marciano and two companions near Newton, Iowa, last Aug. 31 was the result of the pilot's decision to fly in weather in which he should have remained grounded, the National Transportation Safety Board said Thursday.

In its report on the accident the safety board said it hopes all private pilots will read and remember the following message:

"The true tragedy of this accident, in addition to the loss of a nationally known and respected sports champion, is the tragedy of hundreds of other similar accidents: It could have been prevented.

"The pilot followed the first cardinal rule of safe flight planning by obtaining a weather briefing.

"But he did not follow the second — carefully weighing the forecast conditions against his piloting skill and the capability of his aircraft, and then making a conservative decision.

"That decision, in this and many other similar cases, should have been not to make the flight."

The single-engine Cessna 172H was en route from Chicago to Des Moines, Iowa, for a party on the eve of Maricano's 46th birthday.

The plane was piloted by Glenn Belz, 37, of Des Moines. The other passenger was Frank Farrell, 23, also of Des Moines.

The safety board said that in a weather briefing before the 6 p.m. takeoff from Chicago's Midway airport, Belz was told of a weather front near Des Moines in which cloud ceilings occasionally would be below 1,000 feet and visibility would be less than two miles.

Belz was qualified to fly in visual flight conditions which call for basic weather minimums of 1,000 feet of ceiling and three miles of visibility. He was not rated to fly by instrument.

MU's Crnko To See Duty After All

From News Wires

Columbia, Mo. — "I don't know whether we're strong enough physically to cope with Nebraska but we'll find that out Saturday," coach Dan Devine said Thursday after his Missouri football squad had wound up preparations for its Big Eight opener here.

Devine said guard Tim Crnko, whom he had feared would not be able to play Saturday, will be available for spot duty, and added that tackle Rocky Wallace will start.

Crnko has been sidelined with a jammed neck and Wallace missed the first three games of the season with a pulled thigh muscle.

Iowa State

Ames, Iowa — Working out in sweat clothes Thursday, the Iowa State Cyclones concentrated on pass defense.

Coach Johnny Majors says he is aware Colorado's new lineup with Paul Arendt playing at quarterback and Bob Anderson at halfback gives the Buffs power on the ground and in the air.

The Cyclones are expecting a record crowd for their home opener in the Big Eight Saturday, in which Colorado is the favorite.

Majors said Thursday his charges all were healthy and the only expected change in the lineup pputs sophomore Ray Harmes at offensive tackle.

Kansas State

Manhattan, Kan. — Kansas State's Wildcats will be in their best physical shape of the football season when they take on Kansas Saturday at Lawrence, coach Vince Gibson said Thursday.

He praised the work of tailback Russell Harrison and defensive end Manuel Barrera.

"Russell is really developing into a fine back," Gibson said. "He's running like we knew he could run. Harrison is a key to our running attack against KU. And Barrera — well, Manny's playing like we know he could play."

Laver Is Upset In Net Tourney

Las Vegas, Nev. (AP) — Stan Smith, the United States Davis Cup star from Pasadena, Calif., upset Australian professional Rod Laver 6-2, 6-4 Thursday in the quarter-finals of the Howard Hughes Open Tennis Tournament.

The lanky Smith played flawlessly and used his height to advantage in turning back his left-handed foe, generally regarded as the best men's player in the world. Laver was top seeded for this $50,000 tourney while Smith wasn't seeded.

Aaron's 30-Foot Putt Insures Spot In Semifinals With Littler

Virginia Water, England (AP) — Tommy Aaron sank a 30-foot putt for a birdie two Thursday to upset British Open champion Tony Jacklin 6 and 4 and join fellow American Gene Littler in Friday's semifinals of the Piccadilly World Match Play golf championship.

Aaron, of Calloway Gardens, Ga., will meet New Zealand leftie Bob Charles with Littler, the quiet golfer from La Jolla, Calif., facing defending champion Gary Player of South Africa.

Littler defeated Ray Floyd, the U.S. PGA champion from Lake Havasu City, Ariz., 6 and 5. Player defeated French champion Jean Garaialde 10 and 9. Charles eliminated Maurice Bembridge, Britain's match play champion, 6 and 5.

Littler, playing better than he has for months, finished 1 under par the holes played. Charles used his immaculate short game to finish 10 under par. Aaron was nine under and Player six under.

The tournament is unique in the world of golf as match play has virtually disappeared from the scene. The matches were played over a sunny Wentworth course, a tree-lined layout about 30 miles from London, which carries a par of 36-38—74 and stretches 6,997 yards.

There was hardly the whisper of a breeze to disturb the autumn leaves and the course played easily. A crowd of about 10,000 watched the play and saw Littler in brilliant form.

He had two eagles in his 7-under-par 67 in the morning. One game at the first on a 10-foot putt, and another at the long 12th with a 25-footer.

He went to lunch 3 up over Floyd and was 4 up after 27 holes. Littler sank a tricky four-footer for a birdie at the 29th, and that was about the end of Floyd.

Player, winner of this title three times, had a 5-up lead over Garaialde at the end of the morning round. He birdied the 20th hole to go 5 up and finally ended the match after only 27 holes.

"I think I played about as well as I can play this course," Player said. "I've been concentrating on my long game. It paid off. But my putting was only fair."

But it was Aaron, 32, who pulled off the big surprise of the tournament by defeating Jacklin, 25, who was bracketed as co-favorite with Player before the day's play started.

Aaron and Jacklin agreed that the turning point of their match came at the 26th hole, a 400-yard par 4, in the afternoon.

"I was two down there and I dropped my putt right in the hole from about 20 feet," Jacklin said. "Then Tommy potted his 10-footer in just as well, and when I was looking for a win I didn't have one."

Aaron said: "From that point on I felt I couldn't miss a putt."

In fact he didn't, with birdies on five of the next six holes.

The American sank a 16-footer at the 27th and had a 20-footer at the 29th before closing out the match with his 30-footer on the 32nd.

Voice Of Cards Won't Be Rehired

St. Louis (AP) — Anheuser-Busch, Inc., announced Thursday it is not renewing the contract of Harry Caray, who has broadcast St. Louis Cardinals basball games for 25 years.

Jack Buck was named to head up the broadcasting team for 1970, said August A. Busch Jr., owner of the club.

Buck is sports director of radio station KMOX and has been teamed with Caray in Cards, baseball broadcasts since 1954.

Caray's voice has been booming the Cardinal action since he started with the late Gabby Street in 1943. His "Holy Cow" and "It might be, it could be, it is" when Cardinals hit home runs became standard.

Hunting Clock

The following applies to any point in Nebraska that is due north or due south of each of the cities and towns. For each 13 miles west of any designated city add 1 minute, and for each 13 miles east subtract 1 minute. Valentine and Scottsbluff schedules are Mountain Daylight Time. All others are Central Daylight Time. Hunters should set their watches according to the time zone in which they are hunting.

Nixon Hopes For Heroism In Youth

Washington (AP) — Awarding the Medal of Honor to four Vietnam heroes, President Nixon said Thursday he is "confident that the challenges of peace will uncoveer great heroism in America's younger people."

Nixon said that on an occasion like the one at which he honored four Army men, "we dedicate ourselves anew to bringing the peace which we all want, so that men like this, who have this element of greatness within them, may become heroes meeting the challenges of peace . . ."

It was Nixon's first public appearance at a Medal of Honor ceremony in four months. It was held on the south lawn of the White House, and it preceded by just six days scheduled nationwide demonstrations against the Vietnam war.

Nixon made no reference to the planned protests, nor did he speak in defense of his own embattled Vietnam policies.

Receiving the nation's highest award for heroism were Maj. Patrick H. Brady, 33, of Ft. Sam Houston, San Antonio, Tex.; Capt. Jack H. Jacobs, 24, of Fords, N.J.; Capt. James M. Sprayberry, 22, of Sylacauga, Ala., and Sgt. Robert M. Patterson, 21, of Fayetteville, N.C.

Stock Mart Stages Another Squeaker

New York (AP) — The stock market staged another cliffhanger Thursday, with the Dow Jones industrial average skidding below the 800-level and then surging back in late trading.

The widely followed average of 30 industrial issues had fallen 4.35 to 797.85 at noon EDT but pulled out with a gain of 1.59 to 803.79 at the close.

A close below the psychologically important 800 level. would be expected to dampen investors' already threadbare confidence in the market.

"It was a surprise when the home team held on second down with just one yard to go," a Wall Street analyst said in assessing the day's performance.

"The market acted much better than expected. Strangely enough, no avalanche of selling developed when the Dow dropped under 800."

The Dow industrials have been flirting with 800 all this week as prices slipped gradually. Its closing low of the year was 801.96 on July 29. On an intraday basis, it has descended to as low as 788 this year.

The Associated Press 60-stock average, which slumped to a new 1969 low Wednesday, posted a minimal gain of .1 at 281.9 after having been down rather sharply at midday. Industrials were up 1.1, rails were unchanged, and utilities were off .8 to a low for the year.

The New York Stock Exchange index rose 0.17 to 51.66.

Declines of individual issues held a margin of more than 2 to 1 over advances on the Big Board at one stage, but the edge was narrowed to 653 to 637 at the close. New 1969 lows totaled 125 against 10 new highs.

Volume totaled 10.43 million shares, compared with 10.05 million Wednesday.

Among the 20 most-active stocks on the New York exchange, advances exceeded declines 14 to 6. American Standard, up ½ at 33, led the list on total volume of 163,700 shares, including a block of 149,200.

On the American Stock Exchange, declines led advances by 448 to 354, but the exchange index rose 4 cents to $26.52. Volume increased to 3.72 million shares from 2.91 million Wednesday.

Among the 20 most-active stocks on the American exchange, 14 advanced, 5 declined, and 1 was unchanged.

Hog Prices Are Higher At Omaha

Omaha (AP) — Butcher hogs in Omaha Thursday turned mostly 25, instances 50 higher as continued moderate supplies met with good demand from buyers.

Sows were firm, instances 25 up in moderately active trade.

Bulk 200-240 lb. butchers turned 25.25-25.75, around a load 200-230 lbs. topped at 26.00 Thursday in Omaha.

Sows under 600 lbs. ranged 23.00-24.25, sparingly to 25.50.

Slaughter steers and heifers were in short supply. Available sales were termed steady with Wednesday's decline.

Cows were somewhat more plentiful and sold fully steady in active late-week trade.

A limited showing of choice steers moved under a 28.00 top while best choice heifers were at 26.50.

A few extra good beef cows cleared at 21.75, bulk 21.50 and down. Semi-beef kinds grouped 20.00-20.50 with canners at 17.00 and up.

Slaughter lambs were steady. Choice and prime wooled lambs sold at 28.50, same grade shorn were as high as 29.00. Ewes were reported unchanged, quoted 7.50-9.00.

Club Burglary Loss Said $13,000

Omaha (UPI) — The Omaha Country Club estimated Thursday that losses in a recent burglary totaled more than $13,000.

The loot included more than 800 articles of clothing and several sets of golf clubs.

The break-in occurred Sept. 29.

Soybean Prices Climb Sharply

Chicago (AP) — Prices in the soybeans futures complex bounded sharply ahead on the Chicago Board of Trade Thursday, stimulated by an apparently continuing strong demand for these products at the consumer level.

Trade sources reported competing oil prices again were strong in European markets and soybean oil futures moved ahead some 47 points under buying and short covering activity. Soybeans advanced 2¼ cents, but came under profit taking at one time only to close at near highs for the day.

EVERYBODY'S MONEY:

Poverty Not Inescapable Under American System

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

MERRYLE RUKEYSER

Against Tradition

The current trend toward freezing "the poor" into a bloc runs counter to the finest traditions of the American economic system.

Demagogues, ignoring what makes for higher popular living standards, seek a following by turning the poor into an identifiable special interest group.

Thus prudent public officeholders are berated for cutting down on inflation-breeding largesse in the form of "bread and circuses" (free goods), and efficient budget balancers are castigated for insensitivity toward the unfortunate.

This is a departure from the American success recipe which encourages the concept of a classless society in which ambitious children can rise far above the status of their parents.

American Dreams

The American dream traditionally encouraged scions of immigrants in slum dwellings to believe that, through self discipline and training, they could be graduated into higher levels of material well-being. In New York City The Grand Street Boys Association is a living monument to one-time slum dwellers who lifted themselves by their bootstraps, and becafme eminent in the law, medicine, government, business and the arts.

Thus the American adventure has been the very antithesis of the rigidities of the guild system, where classes were stratified.

Thus, in light of the national experience, it is cruel for false prophets to tell slum dwellers that they are caught in a vicious cycle from which there is no escape.

Those who shed crocodile tears for the poor fall into the Marxian booby trap of thinking that only government can rescue folks from a low income.

Effectively Fought

But the business annals of the U.S.A. show that poverty is effectively fought by better production and distribution methods, and individuals are enabled to share in American affluence through practical training in marketable skills, better general education and motivation, and through association with competently captained business teams.

The great illusion, on the other hand, is the myth that economic sweet talk will somehow usher in a great period of prosperity.

Action, not talk, is needed to end or ameliorate poverty.

This has been achieved to a degree in the United States through supplementing the muscle of the human toiler with labor-aiding, mechanically-driven tools of production, by superior direction of men and machines by management, and by continuous improvement of methods through research and development programs.

Language describing the poor is important. The use of social workers' vocabulary, such as the "underprivileged" and the "disadvantaged," lead to an unscientific approach. For reaons sometimes beyond their control, the poor are victims of the low productivity of the family head. The correction should start with a diagnosis of the causes. Retraining in marketable skills is in order and, if the individual lacks motivation, then psychological treatment is needed. The goal should be to equip each to perform up to his own optimum. For the unemployable, public or private charity is needed.

The curse of ill considered welfare schemes lies in forcing many into a dependency pattern and depriving them of the joy of constructive work.

(Mr. Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning their financial problems. Letters with stamped, self addressed envelopes should be sent in care of The Lincoln Star. Questions of general interest will be handled in the column. Others, to the extent time permits, will be handled by mail.)

Final Producer, Consumer Meet Draws 250 Here

Approximately 250 consumers from southeastern Nebraska attended the last of six statewide Producer-Consumer Conferences, in Lincoln Thursday.

The other conferences were held during the past two weeks in Valentine, Alliance, North Platte, Norfolk and Grand Island.

The purpose of the conferences was to promote better use of the food dollar.

Planned around the theme "To Market We Go," the meetings were sponsored by the University of Nebraska Cooperative extension Service and the Nebraska Council of Home Extension Clubs.

Winds Topple Tree Causing Power Outage

Gusting winds of up to 39 miles per hour Thursday led to a 30-minute power failure in the southwest part of Lincoln.

At 19th and Harrison, winds toppled a tree onto a power line, resulting in a power outage in an area from 22nd St., west to Pioneers Park and from Van Dorn to Lake Sts.

Arson Blamed In Fremont Fire

Fremont (AP) — Fire which virtually destroyed the Gifford Lumber Co. in Fremont Monday has been blamed on arson.

In a brief statement issued Thursday morning Dodge County Attorney Richard Kuhlmann and assistant State Fire marshal Wally Barnett said only that investigation "has disclosed the fire was of an incendiary origin. Investigation is continuing by this office and no arrests have been made at this time."

The fire was discovered about 2 a.m.

Two shifts of professional fire fighters and 40 to 50 volunteer firemen battled the blaze which burned out control for more than an hour and still was smouldering by noon Monday.

New Trial Motion Denied By Judge

Kearney (AP) — A motion to overturn the conviction of two men serving in the Nebraska penal complex for the armed robbery of a Kearney Safeway store has been denied.

Buffalo County District Judge S. S. Sidner denied a motion of Edward Conder and Joseph Connito, who were convicted in the September, 1967, robbery.

In their motion, the convicts said their constitutional rights were denied because of "prejudicial" news media coverage before and during the trial.

Las Vegas Blacks Promise To 'Cool It'; Counts Dropped

Las Vegas, Nev. (AP) — "We're going to cool it," said one young black Thursday after a Negro judge's dismissal of curfew violation charges against nearly 200 arrested during this week's black violence here.

"We made a promise," added the youth, who declined to be identified. "We're going to try whitey's methods — we're going to try talking."

The judge, Robert E. Mullen, acted in municipal court Thursday after saying he'd been assured that dismissal of the curfew charges would restore peace to this glittering gambling center's predominantly Negro west side. He had met 12 hours earlier at his home with about 30 young black militants who identified themselves as leaders of the unrest.

'Best Interests'

"It was in the best interests of the community," Mullen said of the dismissals. "But I want to emphasize that this court, the mayor, the police — everyone concerned — will tolerate no more trouble.

"If there is any more violence," the judge added firmly, "it's going to be dealt with swiftly and justly. Peace must be maintained."

He spoke from the bench in a crowded, stuffy courtroom.

The violence erupted on the west side Sunday night, intensified Monday night and then tapered off Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

Two Men Dead

One man was killed, a Negro allegedly trying to loot a liquor store. He was shot by a black security guard stationed inside. More than 50 persons were injured and tens of thousands worth of property was damaged. Police said the unrest may have contributed to a second death, the victim a white door-to-door salesman shot by a Negro on a west side street.

All remained quiet in the 40-square-block section Thursday night, indicating that militants were keeping their word. National guardsmen, alerted earlier as a backup force but never actually deployed in the neighborhood, were sent home, and police cut back on the number of officers in the area.

"We made a deal," the judge said. "I made them a promise, and in return they promised me there would be no more trouble."

Presiding Judge

Mullen, who was hit on the head by a bottle thrown during the turmoil Tuesday night, had been the presiding judge in the curfew violation cases.

Only a few had pleaded guilty to the charge, and they all were given 30-day jail sentences. They could have received as much as six months in jail and a $500 fine. Those who pleaded innocent were ordered held in bail of $1,000 each.

Blacks had complained that the sentences were too harsh and the bail too high.

The defendants all were blacks. Mullen said the dismissal would apply to those whose cases are pending as well as to those who already had pleaded guilty.

Senior Moot Court Finalists Face 3 High Court Justices

Four University of Nebraska College of Law students will argue the final round of the Senior Moot Court competition before three justices of the State Supreme Court at 7:30 p.m. Monday.

The two teams, Garry L. Pingel of Fort Dodge, Iowa, and Earl B. Nelson of Lincoln vs. Roger M. Beverage of Plattsmouth and Donald J. Stading of Lincoln, went undefeated through arguments last year and in three rounds this year.

They will compete in the Supreme Court Chamber in the Capitol building before Chief Justice Paul W. White, Justice Robert L. Smith and Justice John E. Newton.

The case to be argued will be Mathew Onk, Mark Possei, Luke Medik, John Abby and Paul Reest, plaintifs vs. Gantry University, et. al., defendents.

This problem in constitutional law deals with students arrested and convicted of rioting and blocking the entrance to a university building during a demonstration at a private university.

Judge Wilson Of Kearney Dies

Kearney (AP) — Judge Harvey M. Wilson of Buffalo County Court is dead after a long illness.

Judge Wilson, 69, died Wednesday night at a Kearney Hospital where he had been under treatment for a week. He had been Buffalo County judge since January of 1937, and had submitted his resignation recently because of ill health.

In a special meeting Thursday morning, the county board of supervisors named J. Karr Taylor, 61, to replace Judge Wilson immediately.

The board also passed a resolution expressing appreciation for the former judge's years of service "with the highest distinction and integrity."

Taylor, who will fill Judge Wilson's unexpired term until 1972, has been Buffalo County deputy attorney since last April. Before that he was associated with a law firm in Kearney.

Judge Wilson is survived by his widow, Dorothy, and a son and daughter, both married and living away from home.

Mass Celebrated In Sign Language

Philadelphia (AP) — A solemn requiem mass for a deaf pupil was celebrated in sign language Thursday at St. Ambrose Roman Catholic church in Philadelphia.

The funeral was for Norman DeFrancisco, 18, killed in an auto accident last Sunday while returning from a football game in Washington, D.C. He was a high school senior and captain of the team.

The celebrant, the Rev. Anthony Russo, chanted the liturgy and gave it in sign language.

Filipinos Thought Victims Of Huk Guerrilla Attack

Manila (UPI) — The bodies of 10 Filipinos were found on a jungle highway near an American base Thursday in what appeared to be a massacre of defenseless men by Communist guerrillas.

Nine of the victims were guards at a small U.S. Navy communications site at Camp O'Donnell, 65 miles north of Manila. The 10th was a jeep driver who was taking the guards home after their tours of duty. None was carrying weapons, officials said.

Chief Vicente Raval of the Philippine national police said Huk guerrillas apparently stopped the jeep about two miles from the base, ordered the Filipinos to lie down on the road and then sprayed them with carbine and pistol fire.

The attackers fled in the jeep.

Manhole Cover Kills Car Driver; Youths Arrested

Washington (UPI) — Police arrested three teen-agers Thursday on charges they threw a 70-pound cement and cast-iron manhole cover from a bridge onto a car passing below, killing the driver.

Officers said the death of Pedro F. Entenza, 37, of Washington, father of six little girls and a Spanish teacher at the University of Maryland, was the 210th homicide of 1969, breaking the record of 209 murders for the city in all of 1968.

The two older youths, aged 15 and 16, were charged with homicide and destroying public property. The youngest, a 13-year-old, was just charged with destroying public property. All the boys, whose names were withheld by law, were sent to the district receiving home.

Entenza was killed shortly after 10 p.m. Wednesday when the oblong slab hit the top of his Volkswagen on the driver's side, officers said. Police said the car traveled 165 down the road and struck a tree, but they said his death was due to the impact of the manhole cover.

MOWBRAY'S
INTRODUCE BUICK'S 1970
ESTATE WAGON

ESTATE WAGON

Presenting the totally-new 1970 Buick Estate Wagon. With a totally-new approach to what a station wagon should look and drive like. Because, above all, the 1970 Estate Wagon is a Buick. So it shares the sculpted Buick profile, the distinctive wide-angle grille. It looks as elegant and graceful as any Buick. It drives like a Buick. Because, like all big Buicks, the 1970 Estate Wagon has AccuDrive, Buick's advance-design suspension system. Plus a special rear end suspension that's custom-designed for a station wagon's unique handling characteristics. Like all Buicks, it has a cooling system that will never, ever overheat. And a 455 cubic inch V8, the largest smoothest V8 ever made by Buick. It's also standard on the 1970 Estate Wagon. There's more. There's load space, lots of it. You can easily lay a 4' X 8' piece of plywood in it with room to spare. And it's backed by a two-way door-gate that makes loading anything or anybody that much easier. There's even a rear-facing third seat available at modest extra cost. You can also put the Estate Wagon in the same category with the low priced three. So why not get a little more? Best of all it's a Buick. With Buick quality and craftsmanship built right in. And you know what that means. Also at a modest extra cost you can have installed a trailer hitch and wiring harness. The 1970 Buick Estate Wagon is something to believe in.

The Parthenon, 2,400 years old, is struggling for survival. Air pollution is corroding the Greek temple's honey-colored Pendelic marble and vibrations from jet airliners have loosened fragments of the ancient stone.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE

Here's How To Work It

One letter simply stands for another in this example, A is used for the three L's X for the two O's etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A X Y D L B A A X R

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you.

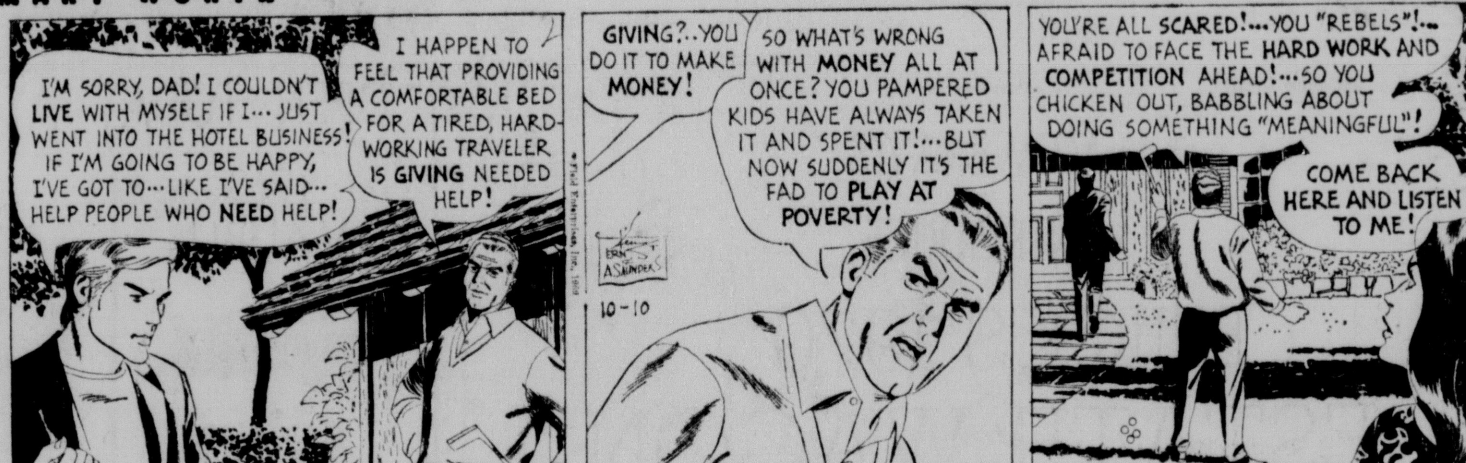
MARY WORTH

by Ken Ernst



I'M SORRY, DAD! I COULDN'T LIVE WITH MYSELF IF I... JUST WENT INTO THE HOTEL BUSINESS! IF I'M GOING TO BE HAPPY, I'VE GOT TO... LIKE I'VE SAID... HELP PEOPLE WHO NEED HELP!
I HAPPEN TO FEEL THAT PROVIDING A COMFORTABLE BED FOR A TIRED, HARD-WORKING TRAVELER IS GIVING NEEDED HELP!

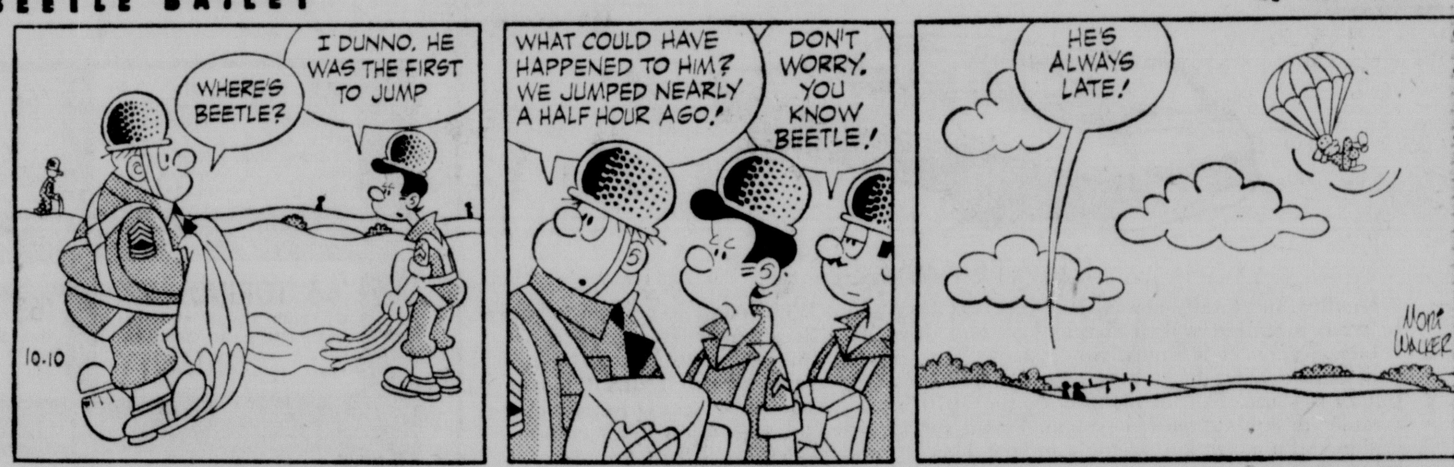
GIVING?..YOU DO IT TO MAKE MONEY!
SO WHAT'S WRONG WITH MONEY ALL AT ONCE? YOU PAMPERED KIDS HAVE ALWAYS TAKEN IT AND SPENT IT!...BUT NOW SUDDENLY IT'S THE FAD TO PLAY AT POVERTY!
YOU'RE ALL SCARED!...YOU "REBELS"!... AFRAID TO FACE THE HARD WORK AND COMPETITION AHEAD!...SO YOU CHICKEN OUT, BABBLING ABOUT DOING SOMETHING "MEANINGFUL"!
COME BACK HERE AND LISTEN TO ME!

BEETLE BAILEY

by Mort Walker



WHERE'S BEETLE?
I DUNNO. HE WAS THE FIRST TO JUMP
10-10
WHAT COULD HAVE HAPPENED TO HIM? WE JUMPED NEARLY A HALF HOUR AGO!
DON'T WORRY. YOU KNOW BEETLE!
HE'S ALWAYS LATE!
